EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

THE Watchman again took occasion to compliment the colored men in its issue of June 13.

MANY politicians seem to forget that Blaine is the people's candidate and they intend to elect him.

THE charges made against Blaine are only slanders concocted by his enemies who are jealous of him.

SCRATCH an anti-Blaine "Republican" paper and you will find a Free-trade organ. Try it and see.

THE Democratic argument against Blaine and Logan will consist in calling names, judging from the way the organs are starting off.

THE nomination of Blaine and Logan has scared the strongest Democratic candidate from the track. Mr. Tilden has a great, large head.

GRANT had a Ward, now let him have a guardian.—Centre Reporter. Heavens! no. His Ward got the advantage of him and a guardian would ruin him entirely.

KICKING editors will feel like kicking themselves before the campaign is over for ever having kicked. They will find that the Republican party can do without them better than they can do without the party.

No man who actually received the Presidential nomination since the existence of the United States had, as a candidate, so strong a hold on the affections of the masses of his party as has James G Blaine at the present moment.

IF his religion makes any difference to anybody, we can state that Mr. Blaine is a Congregationalist. His "religion," however, has never struck in on him.—Watchman. His pastor, who may be presumed to know as much about him as the Watchman, says that Blaine is one of the most devoted and earnest members of the church.

Two Objects to Work For.

When the Republican party was born in the preliminary breathings of an oncoming conflict; when a great principle spoke it into being the existing events were fraught with intense importance and men's minds were influenced by high excitement. The adherents of the bold young party of moral principles were anxious to do or die that it might live. Through fields of blood, agonies of pain and the most deveted human sacrifices love for a glorious cause was sealed.

The results who can recount? Freedom received new life. The vail of woe which made dark the present and desolate the future of millions of sable humanity was rent in twain. Sunlight kissed the unambitious, languishing bondsmen and penetrated with its illuming and refreshing powers to the heart's core. Consitutional rights were established. The declaration of a century before that "all men are equal" was then proven true. A new era of growth and prosperity was ushered in, which has ever since moved gloriously forward with "excelsior" for its motto.

On Tuesday, June 3, the originators of this grand era assembled, from all parts of a free country in a solemn convention to nominate national executives to hold power for four years. Since the day of their birth they had not, as an organization, experienced defeat. The Republican party has a perfect right to be successful in every contest at the polls, by reason of its history, by reason of its principles, by reason of its eminent honesty and grand patriotism; and in the nomination of Hon. James G. Blaine, of Maine, for President on Friday, June 6, it honored itself and performed one of the most worthy and commendable achievements of its entire history.

It is no wonder that the Republicans of the United States look upon Blaine with admiration and cling to him with devotion. Mr. Blaine is a man to challenge admiration and secure devotion. He is, first of all, an American of the most pronounced type. He embodies many of the characteristics which we like to regard as distinctively American. His career would perhaps be possible in no other country. A Pennsylvania boy, a student, a teacher, an editor; at 25 one of the foremost men of Maine; at 39 Speaker of our House of Representatives; a little later United States Senator; then Secretary of State; then enlogist of the martyred president; and finally the writer of a history which, despite foreign prejudice, extorts admiring notice from the London Times. There has been no pause in his career, no time when his resources were crippled. He seems even yet not to have reached the zenith of his fame, for he never stops working. At the age of 54 he is still twenty years younger than Gladstone and with every prospect of a long and vigorous life.

It is not manly it is not patriotic, to decry Mr. Blaine's true greatness. One need not be his political supporter to recognize his splendid qualities, nor his eulogist to admit them. We know that he is brilliant. It is not a flash but a steady glow. All his old competitors have disappeared, while he remains the leader still, abler and greater than when his "audacity of genius" was the first recognized, or when he had freshly "torn from the throat of treason the tongue of slander."

Such a man at the head of such a party cannot be defeated. Let all traitors who, from reasons of jealousy, oppose him, be spurned as unworthy members of any party, especially one so noble.

Among the cardinal principles of the Republican organization is the protection of American industries and workmen. The tariff needs changing but it must be made more protective. The present business depression is solely due to tariff reduction, made it is true by a Republican Congress, but made only with the hope of preventing any worse changes by the Democratic Congress to follow. As soon as the Republican party is restored to full power in all the branches of government the tariff must be made so protective that no manufacture that can be carried on in America will be exposed to the competition of European articles which are made by paupar labor. Of course, in this favored country that will include almost every article. A reduction of taxation is desirable and will be accomplished, but free trade Democrats cannot be trusted to do it. The only hope of a perpetuation of sound, prosperous government for all and by all is the re-establishment of the full and complete dominance of the Republican party. One important step to this end will be a vote for Blaine and Logan and for all the other candidates offered for our suffrage.

The Outlook.

Time not only cures sorrows, but heals judgments. Men have come away from every convention with ambitions disappointed and hopes unrealized. They have muttered their griefs till fretting became foolishness and reasoning took the place of crushed hopes and drooping feelings. In 1880 the Blaine forces came from Chicago with spirits fallen and with the firm conviction that the high political ambition of their chief was crushed forever. On the other hand the noble and unconquerable band who stood so bravely for Grant saw the old hero go down and in his defeat beheld the dissolution of Republicanism. A few weeks passed by the proud head of Conkling stooped under the doorway of Garfield's Mentor home. Grant took the stump in New York, Cameron seized the helm in Pennsylvania, Blaine rallied his followers the country over and a great victory was won. Time soothed disappointment and the necessity of preventing Democratic ascendancy inspired the hearts and hands of every honest and sturdy Republican. That there is opposition to Blaine now cannot be denied, but that it is serious we are not prepared to admit. It is but the natural grumbling incident to the result of every convention, be it a local or national one. It is an opposition entirely different from that which characterized the sullen antagonisms of 1880. Then it was factional, now it is individual. Those who stood by Grant in the convention of 1880, were Blaine's leaders this year. One of the great triumvirate who stood up for Grant and went down with him on the last memorable ballot, now graces the ticket as Vice President. There was nothing said in the convention about Gen. Logan's 306 medal. Hence there was no faction known as "Stalwarts" or "Hal-breeds" fighting for their respective ideas, but a combination of both for the man of their choice. Opposition, as we have said, must then come from individuals not from any organized portion of the Republican party. Individual antagonism is not very strong, unless it has some reason behind it and has for its mouthpiece a man who can organize a following. George William Curtis is never satisfied with anything and his editorials in Harper's Weekly have never been sufficient to organize a following. The New York Times has joined the ranks of that independent class of papers which find pay and profit in the sensation of striking at every thing which people are accustomed to read about. It is an able paper without doubt, but its hobby, Free Trade, is greater than its desire for Republican success. To air its hobby, it prefers a Morrison to Arthur and a Carlisle to a Blaine. So if the whole list of those who are opposed to Blaine are counted up, it will be found they are chronic kickers, Boston literary characters, "Easy Chairs," political dreamers, college professors who go to the polls when convenient, a few newspapers with pet hobbies, some business men who do not interest themselves in politics, and a few ambitious young men who wish to gain local notoriety by being eccentric.

Such diverse and incoherent elements of antagonism have not sufficient common interest to make it effectual. Selfishness, cupidity, ambition and day dreams will not coalesce. The masses never respect what is personal in hate. The people will not desert Blaine, even if the individual Conklings may sulk in their tents and George William Curtis with the sneer of the Pharisee pass him by. A great actor cannot be written down by a single critic. To us the outlook is thus propitious. We do not belong to those who fear a storm because a solitary raven croaks. We have seen too many revolts in both parties to be scared by the lisp of political dudes. As time goes on and the people see that the opposition to Blaine is but the voice of false doctrine, shouting at long distances from the wilderness of selfishness, little heed will be paid thereto. As the weeks pass, the people will not halt in their onward march to listen to a Curtis or read a New York Times' editorial, but pressing on with the shouts of victory will carry the ticket nominated into the capital of the Nation.—Lancaster Examiner.

Mr. Tilden Declines.

Mr. Tilden's letter forbidding the use of his name in connection with the Democratic nomination for president destroys a hope which has been dearer to his party's heart than any tradition it has cherished since the oldest living American cast his first vote. It robs the Democratic party of the one leader who for eight years has seemed destined to be its Moses, and cuts the party adrift in the wilderness, distressed and hungered at a period when the spirit of discord and revolt is strong among his followers.

There is none to take his place. Before his candidacy all the questions of party difference would have been surrendered, and his canvass would have been one, not of principle, but of Tilden and sentiment. His withdrawal, unwilling as it must have been to one of his consuming ambition, is a torch applied to the ambitions of his followers. The little fellows will come to the front, to quarrel and destroy one another for the crumbs which he has brushed from his table. Cleveland, whose strength lies largely in the vigorous coddling he has received from the Free-trade Independents, is the only man who rises to respectable proportions as Tilden's successor in leadership, and even he dwindles in comparison with the standard of Tilden's wily skill. Other than Cleveland, there is no Democrat in New York who is big enough in record or methods to face the chaos into which Tilden's letter must plunge his party.

The letter adds another weight to the certainty of Mr. Blaine's election, and as such it must rank with the good fortune which, beginning with a Democratic Congress last Fall, has ranged and reaped a large share of its strength from the inherent Democratic capacity for doing wrong things at wrong times. It foreshadows the supremacy of the Free-traders in the National Democratic Convention, and that means a Democratic argument for Republican success in November.—Phil'a Press.

THE address of Mr. John R. Lynch on taking the chair as temporary chairman of the Republican national convention was not of great length but it was packed full of suggestive thoughts. He brought to the front the two issues which will be up before the people for decision in November. These are the tariff question and the terrorization of black voters in the south. He believed that the majority of our people will not entrust with power a party which is in favor of prostrating American industry by abolishing the protective tariff and which depends upon carrying a number of states by means of the "shot gun" policy. Mr. Lynch is right. The American people are not yet willing to trust the people who are leading the Democratic party.

NO REPUBLICAN newspaper or periodical that refuses to support Blaine should be supported by members of that party. They are merely wolves in sheeps' clothing in comparison with which the genuine wolves are respectable.

GEORGE WILLIAM CURTIS says that he is right and all the other Republicans are wrong.

THE completion of the Mackay-Bennett cables will be an interesting event to the press and the country. Existing lines are leased on an investment valuation of $64,000,000. Four companies, with all their necessary working expenses, must be maintained at great expense and the renewal fund must consume a large percentage of the gross receipts. It is inseparable from this condition of affairs that telegraph tolls for newspapers cannot be reduced in the same proportion as they have been on land. The new line, with two cables, will represent an aggregate cost of less than seven millions of dollars. It is owned entirely by two men, to whose interest it is to keep down managing expenses as low as possible.

THE platform of the Republican Convention contains the most skillfully-drawn tariff planks that have appeared in any political declaration of principles for many years. It enunciates in general terms the beneficent purposes which should always be kept in view in legislation of all kinds, including the tariff which should be so adjusted that labor and capital can each have its just reward, and "the laboring man have his full share in the National prosperity."

THE Republican national platform is such a magnificent document that the only recourse of our Democratic friends is to accuse the Republicans of hypocrisy and declare they do not mean what they say. Such charges come with bad grace from the Democratic party which never had a policy and which has been jumping from one opinion to another during the past 25 years at a rate that rendered it impossible at any time to know where it stood.

OREGON leads off handsomely this year with a Republican majority and the election of a legislature which insures a Republican senator in place of the present Democratic one from that state. The next elections will be held in August, in Alabama and Tennessee; then in September, Maine and Vermont will vote; and in October, Georgia, Ohio and West Virginia. These are all the states that hold separate state elections this year.

THE Democratic House has concluded to adjourn on June 30. This is not too early for adjournment. Indeed, it would have been better for the Democrats if Congress had not assembled at all The time has all been wasted. About the only business transacted has been the unseating of Republicans. It would be interesting for some of the Democratic newspapers to review the work done by this remarkable Congress.

THE N. Y. Herald don't like the result of the Republican convention. It says that the nomination of Blaine is a triumph of the evil element of the party. Read that, honest farmers—supporters of Blaine, and if you are subscribing for the Herald cancel your subscription at once. For such language (which is a willful distortion of truth) the Herald is a traitor among newspapers.

IT is funny to observe quietly the flip flaps of the Democratic party, in its treatment of American history. It goes into paroxysms of contempt at the Republicans when they refer to the period covered by the years from 1850 to 1865, as raking up ancient history, too old to be more than tradition; but it maunders about the times of Thomas Jefferson as if they were yesterday.

THE Salvation Army is having an unpleasant time in Ohio and Canada. In Cleveland, on Friday evening, twenty-four of them were arrested for causing disturbance on the streets and lodged in the jail cells all night, and at London, Ont., five were treated in the same way.

A returned missionary says that the greatest foe to industry and civilization in tropical countries is the cocoanut tree. It goes on bearing fruit abundantly for forty years without any cultivation, and the natives, knowing they can depend on it for subsistance, remain lazy and savage.

The platform of the Republicans this year is the most pronounced on behalf of protection to American industries of any yet offered to the public. Protection is the keynote. This appeals directly to Pennsylvania. Coupled with it are other planks bearing upon the interests of the workingmen, which find special response in this State. Mr. Blaine, too, has the advantage of being fully abreast in these particulars, if not, indeed, ahead, of the platform on which he has been nominated. He is a Pennsylvanian, too, by birth, and even his character and sympathies are, if anything, more suggestive of Pennsylvania than of his adopted State and place of residence, Maine.

Memorial Flowers.

Mr. William Harkness, of Altoona, died quite suddenly a few weeks ago in that city. He fell down on the street while in the pursuit of his ordinary duties and survived only a short time. He was a reporter on the Altoona Call. In one of his pockets was found the following poem which it was his intention to read on Memorial Day. His sister, Mrs. John Irvin, formerly of Bellefonte and now a resident of Altoona, sent it to the NEWS:

With saddened hearts we gather round
And bring fair flowers from vale and grove,
To scatter o'er the mossy ground
Where sleep in peace the forms we love.
We bring the sweet forget-me-not,
Bright emblems of their mem'ry still;
Let roses crown the hallowed spot
And all the air with fragrance fill.

The summer winds their reqriem sing
And stars of Heaven look down in pride;
The lovely birds of dewy Spring
Chat here at noon and eventide.
We link the daisies bright and fair
And twine them o'er the sacred tomb;
Here lilies pure beyond compare
Shall tell our love in light and bloom.

With each returning year we'll come
To deck these hallowed graves of ours,
And fondly place in light and bloom
Our offerings dear of precious flowers.
Sweet mignonette we scatter here
And violets so fair and meek—
We lay these bright tube roses near
Our grateful thanks to fondly speak.

JIM.

Wha-at—Jim?
Jim Blaine?
Got him?
Great Cain!

Jim Blaine,
Of the State of Maine,
Smartest cuss in out of the rain—
Got him?
Our Jim,
Cheeky Jim,
Full to the brim
Of brass and sass and pluck and vim—
Got Jim?

Why, he's the festive little pill
That went through Catawampous Hill
And made the chivalry so ill;
He stole Ulysses' little squirt,
And put on Morton's bloody shirt;
Hammered Conkling's bosup of gumption,
Walloped Hayes out of resumption,
Whitened Butler's gory locks,
And put a black eye on Sam Cox.

Got him!
Our Jim—

Jim Blaine,
Of the State of Maine;
Will somebody please explain?

NIGHT.

(A PICTURE BY E. BURNS JONES.)

White stars come out in darkening blue of skies,
White foam upon the blue of darkening seas,
And the surf's murmur moans along the breeze
Filled with faint echoes as of far-off cries
Repeating "Vanity of Vanities,
All, all is vanity;" and bearing these
Night stands upon the threshold of the leas,
Blue-clad, with fair slow hands and slumbrous eyes.
And the wind blows to her across the deep
The voice of the dead Day, "O fairest one,
Nought good was there in me from star to star,
And hast thou any between sun and sun?"
So comes the cry; and from her height afar
Night whispers back, "There is no good but sleep."

Our Story Teller.

Narrow Escape.

Colonel Augustus Chopleigh, late of Her Majesty's Indian Army, lived in stately retirement upon his snug little estate in one of the pleasantest of the home countries. From an outsider's point of view, the Colonel seemed to possess most things which are generally considered to constitute mundane happiness. Yet with all this, the Colonel had two eternally grinning skeletons in his cupboard.

The first was the possession of a ne'er-do-weel son, and the second was the non-possession of a wife.

Augustus Chopleigh, Jr., although a ne'er-do-weel in the eyes of a parent, was, after all, but an ordinary, "every-day young man." He betted a little, it is true; he belonged to a club where play was sometimes high of an evening; he could drink his claret like a man; he was a connoisseur in cigars; he possessed two or three long tailor's bills; and he was given to staying in town sometimes for a week at a time Still, after all, what could be expected of a high-spirited young fellow who had received a first-class education, and was therefore unfitted for any serious walk in life; who was good-looking, who dressed well, who found life at stately Dum Dum Hall a little monotonous at times, and who had a handsome annual allowance?

But in the eyes of the Colonel all these little peculiarities were heinous crimes, and the poor old gentleman, as he pondered in the solitude of what he called his "study," saw very clearly that unless the young man was settled in life with a well-bred, well-connected girl, he would infallibly follow, at head-long pace, that broad road which leads to destruction.

Often alone at Dum Dum Hall, deprived of the society of his son, and not caring very specially for that society when offered, it was hardly to be wondered at that the Colonel yearned for a suitable partner in his exile.

The memory of the departed Mrs. Chopleigh could hardly be said to be yet green, for she had succumbed to an aggravated attack of jungle fever some twenty years before, when Augustus, junior, was but a stripling in plaid dresses and bare legs. It might be said that the remedy was easy. Why didn't the Colonel take unto himself a second Mrs. Chopleigh? There were plenty of eligible spinsters who would have jumped at an offer from such a fresh-faced, active, wealthy gentleman, who was but little beyond the prime of life. There was, however, an almost invincible obstacle. Unlike most military men, Colonel Chopleigh was painfully shy; perhaps remembrances of the departed Mrs. Chopleigh, who was known as the Dum Dum Tartar, had driven out the youthful assurance which had won her; at any rate, the flutter of a petticoat awakened feelings within the gallant Colonel's breast which were not to be stirred by a horde of yelling, mutinous Sepoys; or by the stiffest bullfinch in the country. He had loved at a distance a score of times, but had never placed himself within speaking reach of the various objects of his affection.

Suddenly matters took a different turn.

A young lady of strikingly prepossessing appearance—Millicent Vanjohn, only daughter of the Rev. Aloysius Vanjohn, the only vicar—had had been espied by the Colonel proceeding up the lane which ran parallel with his grounds, as he paced along his favorite shrubbery walk.

"I am fifty-five," he said to himself. "I am—well, I am well-looking: my waistcoat is of decent girth; I have a good complexion; and a man is only as old as he feels. Why shouldn't I? I may be called an old fool. Well, there are plenty of older fools in the world. I—yes—I will!"

Miss Vanjohn was walking at the identical spot at the identical hour the next day, and the next day after that, and so on for more than a week, and each day the same little dumb comedy was played—sheep's-eyes on the part of the Colonel, blushings and lookings-down on the part of Miss Millicent Vanjohn.

Did Miss Vanjohn walk up that lane so regularly with a fixed purpose? Of course she did.

Punctually at four o'clock every afternoon, Mr. Augustus Chopleigh, Jr., met her at the top of it. It was rather an odd thing to do—the daughter of a well-known parson meeting sub rosa the son of an equally well-known colonel. The following conversation explains it:

"Oh, Gus! I begin to feel so awfully guilty, meeting you like this! Why can't we love each other openly? There's nothing to be ashamed of in it."

"For more than one reason, my darling. I've a bad reputation down here; all fellows have in country places who go up to town, belong to a club, drive down to Ascot, and so on. If the old man were to know that I was spooning you, he'd rush off to your father and warn him. If your father were to know, he'd rush off to mihe and tell him that I wasn't a fit aspirant for the hand of his daughter."

"But is your father such a terrible old gentleman, then? What is he like? I've never seen him."

"No, I don't suppose you have. He fights shy of anything with a petticoat on it like the plague. I've known him cut a good run short because there were ladies along with him in the same field, and he was afraid that in case of accident he'd have to assist them. He's a tall old fellow, with a fresh complexion and a gray moustache, and always wears shepherd's plaid trousers, summer and winter. Why, what's the matter?"

"O dear! O dear! Gus, don't go on, please don't, or I shall die of laughing!"

"Why, what is there to laugh at in it, Millie? By Jove, if you saw him in a temper you wouldn't laugh!"

"Why, my dearest Gus!—he's—he's in love with me!"

"The old boy—my father—in love with you? Nonsense, my dear—nonsense, I say. Why, he's more afraid of a girl than of an earthquake, or a boaconstrictor, or anything. What on earth makes you think he's in love with you?"

"Why, Gus, every day when I come along here he's walking in the garden. I've always taken him for the steward, or some one, and he makes such eyes at me. Oh, you'd laugh if you could see him. I try not to, but I know I blush and look awfully silly."

"By Jove, Millie, it's no laughing matter—that it isn't. A man's father his rival in love!"

That evening Mr. Gus appeared at home at an unusually early hour.

"Well!" was the greeting of his parent. "You're not here so precious early, with that goody-goody face, for nothing, I'm sure, you young scamp! When you turn up punctually to dinner I know you want something out of me. But, mind, not another halfpenny do you get. I have already advanced your quarter's allowance, and if you have been squandering it on actresses and race meetings, and unlimited loo, dinners at the Bristol, I don't help you. And not only that, sir, but I'm going to put a stop to it. Once for all—and Augustus Chopleigh's a man of his word—I don't care if Stulty, or Golding, or Moses, or any of them come down and dun you at this very door, not a rupee do you get out of me."

"What a deuce of a hurry you're in, father!" said the young man. "I don't want any money."

"Well, what the dickens is it then?" said the old gentleman, seeing that his son looked confused.

"Why—well, I'm in love, that's all," replied Gus; "and I'm going to be married to the best girl in England—a perfect lady, well bred, well connected, and——"

The effect of this speech upon the old colonel was electrical. He jumped up from his end of the table, almost upset Parker, who was handing him the chilies, rushed toward his son and shook his hand heartily; his face beaming with pleasure as he exclaimed: "You're sure of what you say? It isn't Fifine of the Jolity, hey? A lady, well bred, well connected——"

"I've been a bit of a scamp, perhaps, father," said the young man; "but I've never gone in for low form, so when I tell you she's all that could be wished, you must believe me."

"Of course I will; of course I do!" roared the colonel. "Who is she?"

"Well, I don't want to give you her name just now, for many reasons, but you may take my word for it that she's nobody to be ashamed of," said Gus.

"All right, all right; I won't ask any more questions. So long as you are going to steady down with a good ladylike wife, I don't care," said his father. "By gad, Gus, I thought you were going to be a millstone round my neck for the remainder of my life. And now, my boy, you've astonished me, I'm going to astonish you. What do you think is about the most unlikely thing I should do?"

"Give up hunting?" replied Gus, "or sell your orchids? or put up for the county? or--"

"No, no; nothing of that kind," said the Colonel, chuckling. "I'm—I'm going to be married, too."

The son affected the greatest astonishment. The Colonel continued:

"But look here, my boy, it won't interfere with your prospects, and—and, when I say I'm going to be married, I mean that I have my eye on some one, and I rather think, ahem! that some one has a reciprocal eye on me. I'm not such an old bird, eh?"

"Not a bit of it," replied Gus; "and may I ask who the fortunate object of your attention is?"

"Well," answered the Colonel, laughing, "I've a good mind not to tell you, you dog, as you keep me in the dark about your inamorata. But I will. Do you know Miss Vanjohn?"

"Tall girl, brown hair, brown eyes?" asked Gus, innocently.

"Yes, yes—that's the one! She's going to be Mrs. Chopleigh the second," said the Colonel, rubbing his hands gleefully. "I think—ahem! that if I can screw up my pluck, I shall speak to her to-morrow."

That evening the Reverend Aloysius Vanjohn received an unexpected visitor in the shape of Mr. Augustus Chopleigh. Urged by the desperate aspect of matters, the young man had resolved to face the terrible parson, as he believed him to be, and to lay the whole state of affairs before him. To his glad surprise, the reverend gentleman, who, was really a good fellow, and thought very well of Gus, laughed heartily at the notion of the Colonel's suit, and promised Gus that Millicent should marry him when and where he pleased.

"I say, Gus," roared the Colonel, as they were leaving the smoking-room for bed, "promise me you'll bring Mrs. Chopleigh here directly after you're married."

A few days after, Millicent Vanjohn was quietly and unostentatiously made Mrs. Augustus Chopleigh in London. Faithful to his word the young man wrote informing his father of his marriage, and telling him that he should run down on the following day to introduce his bride to her new father.

The Colonel was at dinner—that is to say, he was playing at dinner, for what was his own consuming passion and the eager expectation with which he awaited the arrival of his son and daughter-in-law, he sent away almost untasted every dish that was set before him.

The door-bell rang. The Colonel jumped up to answer it himself, but checked the movement.

"No, no," he said: "I'll have it a surprise to the last."

Gus entered.

"Here I am, father!" he said.

"Yes, yes; but where's——?" said the Colonel impatiently.

Gus went out, and reappeared with Millicent.

The Colonel staggered at first, and something like a frown gathered on his brow. But he recovered himself, and with a smile that illuminated his face, said, addressing Millicent:

"I am indeed delighted to welcome you to my house as a—daughter." Then turning to his son, he added, "Gus, my boy, you've had an uncommonly narrow escape!"—London Truth.

April Fool in France.

A quiet street of the suburb of Courbevoie witnessed on All Fool's day a repetition on a smaller scale of Theodore Hook's famous Berners street hoax. Some 200 merchants, journalists and theatrical managers presented themselves all at the same time in the office of a local notary, in obedience to an urgent summons sent them in his name, though of course not by him. The Palais de Justice was the scene of a more amusing hoax of the same sort on one 1st of April in Louis Philippe's reign. A band of notaries' clerks had for some six months previous made it their business to follow to his abode and note down the address of every hump-backed person they met in the streets. In the last week of March a summons in legal form was addressed to each of them, requiring his attendance, under sundry pains and penalties enumerated, at the palace at noon on April 1. No one daring to disobey this formidable mandate, all hunchbacks of Paris mustered punctually at the time appointed in the "Salle des Pas Perdus" of the palace, to the amazement of the lawyers, the suitors, and, no doubt, of themselves.

James Gillespie Blaine.

James Gillespie Blaine, the Republican nominee for President, was born January 31, 1830, at the Indian Hill Farm, in Washington county, Pa. His father was one of the heaviest landed proprietors in the state, and the son spent several years in early youth at school in Lancaster, Ohio, living in the family of the Hon. Thomas Ewing, who was at that time secretary of the treasury, and whose descendants have since been prominent in Ohio politics. He entered Washington College and graduated at the age of 17, and for a time taught school in his native state. He was an occasional contributor to the magazines and a writer of fugitive pieces for the newspapers during his leisure hours. Finally, having concluded to choose the editorial route to fame, he accepted in 1853, a call from Maine and assumed charge of the Kennebec Journal which, in conjunction with the Portland Advertiser, he edited for some time. He was elected to the Maine legislature in 1858, and served four years. At the beginning of his last term of two years, he was chosen speaker and performed the duties of that office to the satisfaction of the lawmakers of the Pine Tree state. It was during the war of the rebellion in 1862 that he was sent to the Thirty-eighth congress, serving on the committee of post-offices and post roads. He at once devoted himself to a careful study of the rules of the house, and it was not long before he began to be regarded as one of the best parliamentarians in that body. He was re-elected to the Thirty-ninth congress and repeatedly thereafter from the same district and in 1869 was made speaker of the house. His rulings were always prompt and accurate and it was not often that his bitterest enemies could pick a flaw in his decisions.

His position and skill as a parliamentarian brought him conspicuously before the public, and even when temporarily displaced by the advent of a Democratic house and the election of a Democratic speaker he led the forlorn hope of his party with great brilliancy on the floor; his great speech on the Force bill being instrumental in advancing him to the senate, while, strange to say, his principal antagonist in the debate, the late Benjamin H. Hill, of Georgia, was also transferred to the same body for the brilliant defence of his state in the debate.

There can be no question that at the time when the Republican convention was held in 1876, Mr. Blaine was the most popular leader in the party. But the Grant administration was against him, and its forces defeated him. He received 351 votes in the final vote as against 379 for the Hayes' combination engineered by Roscoe Conkling, who had never forgiven the "Plumed Knight" for his severely vivacious reference to him on the floor of the house, in which Blaine compared him with Henry Winter Davis "as a diamond to a dunghill."

Blaine, after his defeat, entered the campaign with the best of feeling toward the Republican candidate and worked night and day for his election. It is said, however, that after the election and after the southern policy of the administration had been enunciated, he never went to the white house, feeling that President Hayes had slighted him. As a senator he voted against the electoral commission bill on the ground that it was unconstitutional. In 1880 he was once more a candidate for the Presidential nomination and succeeded in so using the influence which he had, as to defeat the third term scheme. He did as much as any other one man to elect President Garfield, and his appointment as secretary of state was a perfectly natural one. The history of his connection with the President during his brief administration and after the fatal bullet of Guiteau had done its work is too fresh in the public mind to need repetition here. James G. Blaine, although in private life, is regarded as exerting more influence to-day than any other leader in the Republican party.

Murat Halstead in the Cincinnati Commercial Gazette tells the plain truth about the opposition of the New York dailies, except the Tribune, to Blaine's nomination. He says:

"The time has long passed when the people sought for the opinions of the New York City newspapers, and listened as if they were the utterances of inspired oracles. Without much influence on the politics of their own city, as repeated experiment has proven, they exercise still less in the State-at-large, and none whatever in the great Middle and Western States."

Mr. Halstead sizes up the six papers in this admirable manner: The Herald is fairly intelligent in affairs 3,000 miles away, and its opinion on home affairs is as weighty as that of any other foreigner. The World's opposition comes naturally enough from a Tammany Hall organ. The Sun is a "chronic grumbler and an ancient mud pot." The Times is simply soured. "It arrayed itself against Blaine and Arthur long before the Chicago convention, and showed an indisposition to be pleased with anybody." The Evening Post, like the Nation, "is edited in heaven, or, at least, so far above the plane of ordinary mortals that its influence is chiefly in the air, where a few perfect political saints catch its inspirations and console themselves that they are not as other men are."

The milkman and the dancing master have much in common. They both believe in pumps.

A Leap Year Episode.

Buffalo Daily Times.

There was a party across the river the other night. Toward the close she slipped to his side and sweetly asked:

"Going home by yourself, Charlie?"

"Guess so," he said.

"Would you like some one to see you home?"

"Depends on who it is." His answers were short and crusty. Many a one would have been disheartened, but Lucy was not of that kind. She still persevered.

"Some young lady, I mean."

"Depends on who the young lady is," answered the brute.

"Some one about my size," persisted the angel.

"There are several here about your size."

"See here, Lucy," said Charles, "If you want to take me home you may."

"Oh," she replied, "I've no particular desire to take you home, but, as I was going, I thought you—"

He interrupted her with an "All right," and together they left.

He was leaning on her arm, and silently they meandered over the frozen streets. They stopped at his door. He invited her in.

"No, Charley, I won't go in, but I want to tell you something."

By the light of the street lamp on the corner Charlie's face was seen to grow pale as she continued:

"I am abundantly able to support a husband. I have a bank account of a good size. I love you, Charley, and can give you a good home. Will you be mine, dearest?"

"Lucy," gasped the brute, "you've no idea what it takes to support a husband—"

She interruped him.

"Darling, if it should be necessary, I would work from morning until night, and even take in washing and sewing; you shall want for nothing. Only say you will be mine."

"No, Lucy; it cannot be. I shall always love you as a brother, watch over your pathway through life, and should you stand in need of advice or assistance, you can rely on my willingness to assist you; but I can never marry you."

"Then you refuse me?"

"Yes."

"Base wretch!" she exclaimed, "you will live to repent your hasty decision, for to-morrow my dead body will be found in the cold waters of the river." And, clasping him in her arms in one convulsive embrace, she fled into the outer darkness.

A Chance for Manufacturers.

An Exposition is to be held at Raleigh, in North Carolina, beginning October 1st and ending 28th of the same month. In all respects it is destined to be the most extraordinary State exhibition that has ever been held in this country. Every county in the State will be represented there by displays of its resources of every character and description, and nearly all have made appropriations of money for the purpose of making their collections complete. This Exposition has a three-fold purpose: 1st, that the people of that great State may learn how vast and varied are the resources placed at their disposal by a beneficent Providence; next, that the people of the North may have an opportunity to judge of the richness of the soil, the diversity of crops, and the abundance, variety and value of the mineral and forest products of that State; and finally, it is expected that this collection—obtained from every part of the State through the zeal of its people—will enable the Board of Agriculture to display at New Orleans, as never before, the unlimited and yet scarcely developed wealth of that old Commonwealth.

The managers of this Exposition are well assured that it will be attended during the month of October by at least 25 per cent. of the adult population of North Carolina, and by a very large proportion of the pupils of the public and private schools, and of the more advanced institutions of learning. The railroad companies of the State have contracted to carry visitors to the Exposition at lower rates than were ever before conceded. It is entirely within bounds to say that it will be the greatest assemblage of the people of North Carolina ever known in the history of that State.

As the Exposition will close the last of October, all exhibits made there can be transferred to New Orleans in ample season for their transportation and arrangement before the opening of the World's Exposition December first.

The officers of this Exposition are W. S. Primrose, President, H. E. Fries, Secretary, Leo. D. Heartt, Treasurer, who have their offices in the Agricultural Department Building at Raleigh. A communication sent to either of these gentlemen will receive a speedy response.

What is the Origin of Sunday Schools?

Among the Jews, under the old dispensation, there were schools for the religious instruction of the young not unlike our Sunday Schools. In the New Testament period such schools were attached to the synagogues. They prevailed widely in the first century of the Christian era. Parts of the Bible were used in study. Luther founded regular Sunday Schools in 1529, and this custom spread with the reformation. Charles Borromeo, a distinguished Roman Catholic archbishop of Milan, had them in operation in 1760. Robert Raikes, in 1780, established a school. This is justly regarded as the beginning of modern Sunday Schools.—New York Observer.

We Observe—

That the summer costumes worn by the girls are about as charming as it is possible for them to be. They consist of two or three different shades of light-tinted goods which harmonize beautifully.

That quite a number of frame dwelling houses are rising into view in the outlying portions of the borough.

That the days are now almost as long as they will be this year.

That the disagreeable periods of weather this summer occur during the dark of the moon, which suits us exactly.

That the Gentlemen's Dancing Class Hops are the most popular sort of entertainments given in Northern Pennsylvania.

That the crossing which was to have been built across High street near Valentines Stores is yet a creation of the future.

That the people of Bellefonte have excellent opportunity to know what it is to live by faith. Railroad companies never prevaricate, and that the new passenger and freight depots will be constructed we have their certain promises. But visions of surveyors and engineers with compasses and tape lines are the only evidences of fulfillment of these promises vouchsafed to us.

That the members of the Bellefonte Boat Club should soon furnish us some harrowing accounts of miraculous escapes from drowning.

That the school children whose vacation has begun are just boiling over with happiness.

That the young ladies and gentlemen who expect to take part in commencement exercises are now engrossed with a variety of mental occupations. One half of each day is devoted to the composition of learned and eloquent literary productions which are to electrify the audience and the other half is given up to the study of the requisite number of flounces for a white dress to be worn on that occasion or the number of colors to be combined in a stunning button hole bouquet. These will also have an electrical effect on the spectators.

A Big Celebration.

The celebration of the Fourth of July as planned by the Logan Hose Company will certainly be about twice as big as any celebration ever before managed by them. As will be noticed by what follows, those who have already accepted invitations number 400 men, not including many friends who will doubtless accompany them. There will be an abundance of music. A member of the company has given us a list of those who will be here as revised up to date. They are as follows:

Paxon Steam Fire Engine Company No. 6, of Harrisburg, numbering 75 men and a band of 28; Good Will Steam Fire Engine Company, of Hollidaysburg, numbering 60 men and a band of 20; Good Will Steam Fire Engine Company, of Altoona, numbering 50 men and a band of 20; Logan Hose Company, of Altoona, numbering 40 men and a band of 18; Friendship Hook and Ladder Company, of Tyrone, numbering 40 men and a band of 22; Undine Hose Company, of Bellefonte, numbering 40 men and a band of 20. There are still a number of companies to hear from.

Committees have been appointed to canvass the different wards for provisions. They are meeting with good success, and the ladies of the town deserve credit for their liberality. A majority of the companies will arrive in Bellefonte on Thursday evening, July 3. From the time of their arrival until their departure Bellefonte will be a scene of lively excitement. It depends on the citizens of the town whether the proper entertainment shall be extended to these visitors and we do not doubt that all will do their duty in this regard.

Thanks from the Ladies.

The ladies of the Episcopal church, Bellefonte, hereby extend their sincere thanks to all who in any way contributed to make the Gypsy Camp and supper such a successful venture. Of those not connected with the church they take the liberty of naming the Bellefonte School Board for the use of their grounds, Mr. Perry of the Electric Light Station for lighting the grounds so beautifully, and the Pleasant Gap Band for good music.

Without pretending to give an editorial opinion of a remedy of which we know nothing personally, we desire to ask those of our readers who are afflicted with scrofulous or other diseases of the blood, to examine and test the claims of Hood's Sarsaparilla. It comes to us with high individual indorsements, is compounded by practical druggists, and is made of materials recognized as valuable by all physicians.

THE GREAT DR. DIO LEWIS.

His Outspoken Opinion.

The very marked testimonials from College Professors, respectable Physicians, and other gentlemen of intelligence and character to the value of Warner's SAFE Cure, published in the editorial columns of our best newspapers, have greatly surprised me. Many of these gentlemen I know, and reading their testimony I was impelled to purchase some bottles of Warner's SAFE Cure and analyze it. Besides, I took some, swallowing three times the prescribed quantity. I am satisfied the medicine is not injurious, and will frankly add that if I found myself the victim of a serious kidney trouble I should use this preparation. The truth is, the medical profession stands dazed and helpless in the presence of more than one kidney malady, while the testimony of hundreds of intelligent and very reputable gentlemen hardly leaves room to doubt that Mr. H. H. Warner has fallen upon one of those happy discoveries which occasionally bring help to suffering humanity.

How Watch Cases are Made.

The many great improvements introduced in the manufacture of the Jas. Boss' Gold Watch Case, have led to similar improvements in the making of silver cases.

Under the old methods, each part of a silver case was made of several pieces of metal soldered together, requiring a great amount of cutting and soldering, which softened the metal and gave it the pliability of lead rather than the elasticity of silver.

Under the improved methods, each part of the Keystone Silver Watch Case is made of one solid piece of metal hammered into shape. The advantages are readily apparent, for every one knows that hammering hardens the metal while soldering softens it.

To test the superiority of the Keystone Silver Watch Case, take one of 3 oz. weight, press it squarely in the center when closed, and it will not give, while a case of same weight of any other make will give enough to break the crystal. The Keystone Silver Watch Case is made only with silver cap and gold joints.

Send 2 cent stamp to Keystone Watch Case Factories, Philadelphia, Pa., for handsome Illustrated Pamphlet showing how James Boss' and Keystone Watch Cases are made.

LATEST TELEGRAPHIC NEWS

A Deadly Crash.

PHILADELPHIA, June 15.—Yesterday morning a collision occurred on the Camden & Atlantic road between the express and an excursion train, by which the following were killed: West Palmer, engineer of the accommodation train, aged 52; George Baxter, engineer of the Lakeside train, aged 35; Walter Vaughn, baggagemaster, aged 25; Albert Smith, conductor of the Lakeside train, aged 30; Scott Wylie, mail agent, 35; Nicholas Barber, fireman on the accommodation train; Frank Fenton, supervisor of road. The collision occurred at 9 o'clock between the 7 o'clock accommodation train from Atlantic City and a special excursion train from Camden to Lakeside, park, a short distance east of Ashland station. Both locomotives were entirely demolished, together with the tender.

The accommodation train was composed of a locomotive and seven cars, while the Lakeside Park train consisted of a locomotive and two cars. The latter were filled with women and children, and the former an excursion, given under the auspices of the Sunday school connected with the Second Presbyterian church, of Camden. This train left the latter place at 8.30 o'clock this morning, and just previous to the departure a dispatch was forwarded by Superintendent Bannard to the operator at Ashland street, with orders directing the accommodation train to lay off on a siding at that point until after the special excursion passed. It is not known whether or not the order was received as sent, or whether the conductor and engineer of the accommodation disregarded the order and kept on with their train.

There is only a single track in the the curve where the accident occurred, with a slight embankment on either side. The accommodation was running at 22 miles an hour when it entered the curve, and after the two trains came together there was the utmost confusion among the passengers. The first man taken out was John Rosenbaum, the express agent of the accommodation train, who was terribly cut about the head, face and hands. He was found with a lot of debris covering him, and was extricated with difficulty. The body of Fireman Nicholas Barber was next discovered under the wrecked tender, terribly mangled. Fireman Louis McLain was unconscious and terribly scalded, with his head swollen to twice its normal condition. Brakeman John Lager was hurled from the baggage car into a pool of water and mud.

A later dispatch says all of the persons injured are improving, except Heith, the special officer, who is so much worse to-night that his recovery is impossible. It was also rumored in Camden to-day that Conductor Glenn, injured internally, is likely to die.

Brussels Election Riots.

BRUSSELS, June 13.—The excitement resulting from the liberal defeat on Tuesday continues. The streets last night were thronged with turbulent crowds, which the police dispersed Further rioting is expected on Sunday. It is probable that the senate, where the liberals have a small majority, will be dissolved. Rioting first occurred on the day of the election, Tuesday, at both Brussels and Antwerp, and several persons were injured. The liberal party is mainly supported by the workingmen, who claim that the royal authority was used to defeat them. The trouble is very serious and the indications now point to a renewal on Sunday, when the people will be idle. The excitement runs high.

The Penn Bank Overdrafts.

PITTSBURG, June 13—A hearing was had this morning in the cases of Thomas J. Watson, the oil broker, and Cashier Reiber, charged with conspiring to defraud the Penn bank. President Riddle was indicted, but waived a hearing and gave bail for court. The testimony was mainly a repetition of the facts already published, but tended to show that Riddle, Watson and Reiber were associated in oil speculation and overdrafts of the fictitious firms represented by their transactions in oil.

One of the fictitious accounts opened with an overdraft of $125,000, and at the close of the bank there was over $400,000 overdrafts. Thomas J. Watson's individual account was $97,000 overdrafts. The charges against the overdrawn accounts were made by the direction of President Riddle, and Reiber was cognizant of the condition of the accounts. The testimony for the defense will be heard next Friday. Assignee Warner to-day stated he is getting the affairs of the bank in shape, and it is now thought that instead of paying only two cents he will be able to pay twenty-five cents on the dollar.

Schurz's Opposition.

In Washington they offer a queer explanation of Carl Schurz's opposition to John A. Logan. It seems that both Schurz and Logan were members of a select stag party at the house of a prominent senator one evening, and that, during the informal entertainment provided, somebody, knowing Schurz's accomplishments as a pianist, asked him to favor the company with some music. Schurz, who is never backward in contributing to the enjoyment of others, complied, and, seating himself at the piano, wandered off into the intricate movement of Beethoven's Fifth Symphony. He had lost himself in the weird, delicious harmonies of the work, and was reveling in sympathetic communion with the spirit of the great master, when, an interlude occurring, Logan broke in: "Say, Schurz, suppose you quit practicing and play something. How does 'Grandfather's Clock' strike you?"

From that day to this Schurz has followed Logan with all the vengeful tenacity of a man whose heart feels the weight of a great wrong.

Excitement in Wall Street.

NEW YORK, June 12.—Wall street is flooded with unfavorable rumors. It was reported that the First National Bank of Cleveland had suspended, but advices state that that institution is doing business as usual. It is rumored government experts have discovered a deficiency of $20,000,000 in Union Pacific sinking funds, and the money used to sustain the market value of the stock. President Dillon states the company has done nothing whatever in stocks. Not a dollar has been used for such purposes.

It is further stated there is a serious washout on the Central Pacific at Hemboldt, but this is officially denied by the company's agent at San Francisco. These reports made the market feverish. Prices declined sharply. Missouri Pacific dropped 2¾; St. Paul, 2; Lackawanna, 2; Western Union telegraph, 1¾; the remainder of the list, ¼ to 1¼. Subsequently the market became steady again.

The Army of the Potomac's Excursion.

NEW YORK, June 12.—The veterans of the Army of the Potomac, in charge of General Horatio King, this morning embarked on the steamer Grand Republic for their water excursion. They were taken down the bay and witnessed the start of the yachts in the races of the New York Yacht Club. A drizzling rain fell at times during the day, which made things a little disagreeable. After the start of the yachts was witnessed the veterans were taken on a sail up the Hudson river. In the afternoon they went to Manhattan Beach and this evening dined at the Oriental Hotel. The citizens' fund for the entertainment of the army amounts to about $10,000.

Tilden's Declination Absolute.

ST. LOUIS, June 13.—The Republican of this city, in referring to Tilden's letter, said: "Having interpreted it to mean that when Tilden is nominated he will not refuse to be the candidate of the democratic party, the Evening Chronicle telegraphed to Tilden, asking him if that was the proper construction to be placed on the letter. The telegram was referred by Tilden to Daniel Manning, chairman of the democratic state central committee, and he to-day sent the following reply: Mr. Tilden's letter means what it says. His declination is absolute. Under no circumstances will he be a candidate.

[Signed.] "DANIEL MANNING."

Col. Quay's Opinion.

PHILADELPHIA, June 12.—Colonel Quay says of the ticket: "The Chicago Convention was a large assemblage of small men, but accidentally produced important results. I think it has wiped out effectually the dark horse theory in American politics. I was for Arthur, but as he did not go through, my gratification was intense at the success of Blaine. We will elect this ticket, certain as death and the judgment."

Encampment Closed.

MILTON, June 13.—The eastern division of the Sons of Veterans closed their three days' encampment to-day. The officers elected yesterday were installed this morning. The next year's encampment will be held at Pottsville.

Charlie Among the Gypsies.

QUINCY, Ill, June 12.—There seems to be undoubted evidence that the real lost Charlie Ross is now in Quincy, where he is spending a few days with Dr. Kalb prior to being sent to his parents in Philadelphia. The unaffected history he gives of things which occurred at his father's prior to and the manner of his being abducted by the gypsies as also the treatment he received for ten years while a prisoner, and the simple, unaffected answer he gave to the many questions propounded by Dr. Kalb leave no doubt in the mind of Dr. Kalb as to the once lost Charlie Ross being here. He made his escape from the gypsies last fall in Austin, Texas. He at once began to work his way to his parents and now, being without money, he is detained here, but will be sent to his parents perhaps next week.

He says he has always since he was stolen, when four or five years old, thought about himself as being Charlie Ross, but the gypsies would not allow him to go by that name nor to tell who he was. He was held in bondage, so he says, for the purpose of begging and stealing for the gypsies, but the latter he would not do and for refusing to do so he received many blows, the scars from which show on him.

A Base Ball Umpire Roughly Treated.

BALTIMORE, June 12.—The game of base ball between the Baltimore and Louisville Clubs this afternoon proved the most exciting of any ever witnessed at Oriole Park and nearly resulted in Umpire Brennan being mobbed by a crowd of about one thousand persons, who jumped over the railing and but for the interference of the players would have accomplished their object. The disturbance was caused by a decision by the umpire in the tenth inning in declaring Sommers, of the home team, out on third base. The game was stopped for about thirty minutes and then resumed. After the game was called and as Brennan was being conducted to the club house a mob broke over the rail and assaulted him, striking him in the face and knocking him down. He, however, escaped to to the club house without receiving further injuries.

The Massachusetts Bolt.

WASHINGTON, June 15.—Some of the Republicans here are making fun of the bolters' convention, held in Boston on Friday evening. As it is diagnosed by the Massachusetts members of congress, nearly all of the leaders are either Democrats, disappointed Republican office-seekers or extreme free traders, like Professors Seelye, of Amherst; Eliot, of Harvard; R. H. Dana, and others. According to the analysis furnished, Codman, the president of the meeting has been twice defeated when a candidate for mayor of Boston; Henry L. Pierce has been twice defeated as a candidate for congress; Martin Brimmer is a defeated congressional candidate; Joseph H. Walker, of Worcester, is a defeated legislative candidate; Samuel Hoar, of Concord, was defeated as a candidate for the state senate; David Flint, of Watertown, was kicked out of place by Butler, and holds the Republicans responsible for his misfortune because they did not stand by him; Colonel Higginson is a defeated candidate for the legislature; Edward Atkinson is a Democrat; Leveret Saltonstall was president of the last Democratic state convention. The Blaine men here assert that the committee of one hundred comprises about all the bolters in Massachusetts.

Ex-Mayor Liddell for Blaine.

PITTSBURG, June 13.—The Times to-morrow will publish a dispatch which ex-Mayor Liddell sent to Congressman Bayne during the Chicago Convention, saying: "Never voted for a Republican. Give me Blaine and I will make it tell in Ohio, where the votes are needed." Mr. Liddell said to-day: "I am for Blaine, and I am going to vote for him and work for him. My reasons are partly personal and partly political. I have always been a warm admirer of Blaine, and if he had been nominated as far back as 1876 I would have kicked over the traces, and I can do so without nearly so much hesitation now. This eternal clamor among the Democratic leaders for free trade has tired me out. I don't see how any man living in Pittsburg, or any Pennsylvanian, can stand it."

Frost Ruins New England Crops.

BOSTON, June 15.—Reports from various parts of New England state that the heavy frosts of Saturday night caused considerable damage to growing crops. The Cape Cod district reports that the prospect for a cranberry crop is entirely ruined. Hundreds of acres were blighted, involving a loss of many thousands of dollars. The potatoes and corn and vines of all kinds were also seriously affected. Much of the corn will have to be replanted, and owing to the lateness of the season a short crop will be the result. In Norfolk county, Mass., the entire crop of vegetables was destroyed and farmers who make a specialty of every produce will suffer extensively. In nearly all sections the growth of the crops was retarded.

What Gladstone Expects.

LONDON, June 15.—Sir Charles Dilkes' paper, the Weekly Dispatch, says that Gladetone, in frankly conversing with one of his warmest supporters, declared that he expected to be out of office in a few weeks. The dispatch urges Gladstone, if defeated on the Egyptian policy, not to resign, but to carry the franchised bill to the house of lords and then dissolve parliament, and appeal to the country on the general policy of the government.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL NEWS

—Mr. Joe Undercoffler, the graceful bicyclist in the employ of the Railroad Company at the depot, has been getting in some fine work on his two-wheeled vehicle of late. He went to Snow Shoe on Saturday evening on the train, taking his spirited vehicle with him. He spent the night and most of Sunday at Mr. John Uzzle's famous resort for the weary. Thoroughly rested and with such strengthening refreshments as Mr. U. can supply, he started from Snow Shoe for Bellefonte at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, reaching here at 5 o'clock. People along the route say that he went so fast that they thought it was his Satanic Majesty on horseback and his dumb steed was steaming with perspiration when it reached Bellefonte, although its rider was as fresh as a daisy.

—The Association base ball nine and the State College Club, No. 1, played a game on the College club grounds on Saturday afternoon, which resulted in the very close score of 14 to 15 in favor of the College nine, although we understand that the umpire acknowledged that the game may properly be claimed by the Association nine, he having hastily made one or two decisions which his second judgment would have led him to reverse. The Association nine, being without several of their very best players, are well satisfied with the result and, judging by Saturday's game, they are persuaded that a nine can be organized in this vicinity which need not fear to meet any club in the surrounding towns.

—We commiserate with the Watchman in its failure to find space (which Joe calls "room") in which to describe the beautiful toilets of the Bellefonte ladies who attended the hop. We can well imagine that the dull, metallic sound of the form being locked up without that description in it caused Joe intense agony. But we don't know how to remedy it. The ball occured exactly one week before the Watchman was issued which would seem to afford sufficient time. O, great and might space space space! That's what Joe wants.

—The telephone connection between Bellefonte and Lewistown was completed on Wednesday and caused general rejoicing all along the line. We had the pleasure of talking with the Gazette and Free Press offices and found that the line worked admirably. Now that Bellefonte's telephone connection has become more extended Lock Haven will be frantic with rage and jealousy.

—The enterprising proprietors of Hood's Sarsaparilla are the first in the field with a campaign card giving an excellent likeness of James G Blaine, the Republican Presidential candidate. The back of the card also gives the last electoral vote, the new apportionment, and other valuable information. Copies may be had by sending stamp to C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.

—Two commencement exercises in which the people of Bellefonte are interested occured on Wednesday—those of Hollidaysburg and Birmingham Seminaries. According to the accounts given in the Altoona Tribune, both of them were highly successful and satisfactory. Mr. and Mrs. Aikens and several other Bellefonters were at Birmingham.

Extreme Tired Feeling.

A lady tells us "the first bottle has done my daughter a great deal of good, her food does not distress her now, nor does she suffer from that extreme tired feeling which she did before taking Hood's Sarsaparilla." A second bottle effected a cure. No other preparation contains such a concentration of vitalizing, enriching, purifying and invigorating properties as Hood's Sarsaparilla.

EDITOR'S TABLE.

The June number of the Wide-Awake sparkles with good things for its thousands of youthful readers who will spend many a pleasant half hour looking over its varied contents. The opening story is by Miss Mary Wilkins who writes about "The Cow with the Golden Horns." Miss Amanda Harris writes interestingly of "Some Little Shakers" with illustrations by Bodfish. The boys will be immensely pleased with Mr. Holder's contribution "About White Elephants,' and older readers will be interested in a paper contrfbuted by Edward Everett Hale, giving his experience as chaplain of the Boston Court House. Interesting chapters of the serials are given. The number is noticeable for the excellence of its poems and other miscellaneous matter.

Lines from Loveville.

LOVEVILLE, June 12, 1884.

MR. EDITOR: I will commence my letter this week with a "Hurrah for Blaine and Logan," as that seems to be the prevailing sentiment of the Republicans in this district. On hearing the decision of the National Convention, Wm. H. Fink leaned out of the store window and sung out "Hurrah for Blaine!" O. Whippo smiled a calm but apparently very satisfactory smile. Wm. Cole was too overjoyed for anything—too full for utterance. He took off his hat and waved it in silence without making any outward demonstration, but his expression was that of assurance itself.

Mr. Wilson Way, supervisor, and his assistants, have this week been making repairs on the roads in places where such repairs were required.

Toward the close of last week there came a stranger to John McIlvain's and John thinks it may be profitable to keep the young gent and make a carpenter out of him.

Mr. John Wilson tried an experiment a few evenings since—that of blowing out stumps with dynamite. The experiment was a success, the debris flying in every direction.

Mrs. Jennie Rumbarger of this place, is sojourning in Unionville this week on a visit to her parents. B. W. doubtless thinks it mighty lonesome just now.

Last Sunday, the day set apart for the purpose of holding children's meetings, was appropriately observed at the Ross appointment. The services, conducted by Rev. Walter R. Whitney, pastor in charge, were very interesting and appropriate to the occasion. Both old and young proclaimed it a rare treat to have listened to such an impressive service.

While the blacksmith of Loveville, on Monday last, was busily engaged trying to shoe a vicious horse, a stranger with what was apparently a bundle of ropes under his arm, walked into the shop and took a seat in a very unceremonious manner. Observing the viciousness of the animal then in the smith's charge, he said that his business was to tame such beasts. He immediately proceeded to untie the bundle and took therefrom what he termed a bridle for vicious horses, putting it on the animal. To the blacksmith's surprise, it at once became very docile and was easily shod. The result of this incident was "Osborne's" purchase of one of the bridles. But again I am WEB.

—Mr. H. Yeager, the contractor, has two very important conracts on hand the securing of which is a high testimonial to his skill and ability. They are the residence to be erected by Major Wm. F. Reynolds and the Catholic church. The former, we understand, is to be pushed to completion without delay and Mr. Yeager is engaging a large force of skilled masons and stone-cutters for that purpose. Mr. Neff, of Philadelphia, who was engaged, we believe, under Mr. Yeager, on the Reformed church, will come again to aid Mr. Yeager in this work. Mr. Neff is a pleasant gentleman and attends closely to business. Hummelstown brown stone will be used in the construction of each of these buildings. It is much in vogue now in the finest stone architecture and we are glad that it has been selected by Major Reynolds and by Father McArdle.

An Extended Pedestrian Tour.

Two young gentlemen of Harrisburg, Robert A. McFadden, of the state library, and Fred C. Martin, a music teacher, are at present emulating the example of college students in Germany, who spend their vacations in extended tours on foot. Messrs. McFadden and Martin left Harrisburg Wednesday morning for Cresson, Pa., reaching Millersburg, twenty-four miles distant, the same day. They will visit Lock Haven, Bellefonte, Tyrone, Altoona and other points on their way to Cresson, and come home by way of the Juniati Valley. The trip is one for recreation and amusement and is the summer vacation of the young men.

—The Moshannon Cornet Band is getting up a rival celebration to that of the Logan Hose Co., of this place, and announce a grand picnic for July 4. Among the attractions enumerated on the published bills are "a splendid platform," "a beautiful grove," "gentlemanly conduct," "the best music that can be procured," etc. Theodore Eckey, William Cramer and John A. Yeager are the committee, of which the last-mentioned gentleman is secretary.

—Pennsylvania Furnace is now in active and we hope successful operation. Messrs. John Lyon and George Lyon together with several Pittsburg gentlemen are controlling it. The first bast was put in on Thursday. About 50 men will be employed and it is expected that the product will be 200 tns of iron daily.

—The Pennsylvania State College Commencement exercises will begin next Sunday.

Wedding Bells.

NICHOLLS—WOOD.—On Wednesday, June 11, at the residence of the bride's sister, Brooklyn, N. Y., by Rev. Dr. R. S. Storrs, Alfred Nicholls and Almira E. Wood. No cards.

The above wedding notice constitutes about all the information we have concerning the very interesting event. Mr. Nicholls will be remembered as a resident of Bellefonte during a period of five or six years, his first business engagement here being that of Manager of the Bellefonte Press Company and the second as manager of Valentines' Stores. In each of these capacities he was exceedingly capable and popular. He was also a valuable and highly esteemed citizen, well educated and socially quite fascinating. His departure from Bellefonte for the purpose of taking charge of a more extensive business in Brooklyn was universally regretted by the numerous friends whom he had drawn around him here.

With his bride we are not acquainted, but that she is his selection among the numerous beautiful and cultivated ladies in that large city is a sufficient testimonial to her excellence. The happy young couple have our best wishes for their future.

We are informed that they will go to the White Mountains on their wedding tour.

—There were some very beautiful strawberries on sale at market Saturday morning, but none which looked larger or more perfect than those disposed of by Mr. Philip Reside, of Milesburg. Such berries should be preserved whole. We have not tested the following recipe for preserving strawberries in this manner, but offer it on the recommendation of an exchange: "Take equal weights of the largest strawberries procurable and fine loaf sugar; lay the fruit in deep dishes and sprinkle half the sugar over them in fine power; give the dish a gentle shake that the sugar may always touch the under part of the fruit; on the next day make a syrup with the remainder of the sugar and juice drawn from the strawberries and boil it until it jellies; then carefully put in the strawberries and let them simmer nearly an hour; next put them with care into jars or bottles, and fill up with the syrup, of which there will be more than required, but on the next day the jars will hold nearly or quite the whole; cover the jars or bottles with brandy covers."

—From the Philipsburg Ledger: "The Central Pennsylvania Telephone Company are erecting under the management of Mr. John Kenyon, the superintendent of this district, a line from this place to Kylertown. It was at first intended to be a toll line, but through the persuasion of Mr. Kenyon the company have decided to connect it with the Philipsburg Exchange, which will give their subscribers here the benefit of the new territory. They have five instruments placed in Kylertown already in the offices and business places of the following gentlemen: Messrs. L. G. Kyler, E. C. Brenner, Boyer, Mons, and Hoover & Forcey. The wire will be the new patent copper, which is largely superior to the galvanized iron. This district is very fortunate in having a superintendent like Mr. Kenyon. While looking carefully after the best interests of his employes, he at the same time makes every effort to oblige and accommodate the patrons of the Telephone Company."

"Home, Sweet Home."

Mr. and Mrs. Clem. Dale, of this place, are now "going to housekeeping." Mr. Dale purchased the beautiful frame residence on Willow Bank street, owned and occupied by Mr. Jesse Stewart, the contractor, and during the past few days he and Mrs. D. have been devoting themselves to the duty of arranging the interior in the most comfortable and artistic manner. Mr. Dale says he has worked hard and is consequently weary, and as we know that the work of moving is "no laughing matter," we can well believe that he really feels the weariness which follows in the train of honest toil. But the reward which they will receive will be a rich recompense. "Home, sweet home," will be theirs, and we hope that they will so enjoy its advantages that while all places may be pleasant to them there may ever be "no place like home."

The Concert This Week.

We are pleased to announce that the Arion Glee Club, of Princeton College, will appear in Bellefonte on Thursday of next week, June 19. This concert will be one of the finest ever given in this place. The English glees which they render are beautiful. The eight voices of which the club is composed mingle in delightful harmony. The college songs are lively and spirited and everybody who has ever heard a single song of this description will be sure to hear the songs rendered by these young men, as there are no finer singers in the country. One of their number is also a superior pianist and has pleased and delighted large audiences. He will preside at the piano and also render two instrumental solos. These glee clubs usually sing only in such cities as Baltimore, Washington, etc. Remember, the music they render is not solemn church music, neither is it of that high-toned, classic description that is only half appreciated by the ordinary audiences, but it is decidedly lively and humorous and pleases everybody. Reserve a seat at once at Sourbeck's.

—Seven gentlemen appointed by the court to assess damages on the Bellefonte and Beech Creek R. R. began their work on Thursday morning and concluded Saturday. Each man makes an estimate of what he considers the amount of damage to be worth, the amounts are then added together and their sum divided by 7. The quotient is the correct amount of damages, being a fair average of each of their estimates.

—The beautiful kalsomine which adds so much to the interior appearance of the Post Office is of two very tasteful and delicate shades. It has been further supplemented by lavish applications of paint on the woodwork which will contribute to the general attractiveness. We congratulate Postmaster Johnston on the improvement of his headquarters, and hope it will increase his own and the government's wealth.

—There will be an immense attendance at the festival to be given by the Citizens' Cornet Band of Milesburg on Friday and Saturday evenings, June 20 and 21. The large posters displayed at prominent places attract much attention. Then the novelty of going to a large tent that will contain 1500 people is a feature that will draw many people.

—Wherever the Arion Glee Club have given a concert they have been urgently invited to return. They may never again visit Bellefonte.

HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA

Works through the blood, regulating, toning and invigorating all the functions of the body.

Ringworm Humor and Salt-Rheum.

RAYNHAM, MASS., Aug. 12, 1878.

C. I. HOOD & Co.: Gentlemen— * * * * I have had ringworm humor and salt-rheum so badly that my body was covered with raw sores; so, also, my head and face. I have had any number of doctors in the last seven years, and none of them could cure me. One day my mother was in the city of Taunton, and found one of your cook books, and in reading it I found many people testifying to cures from the use of your Sarsaparilla and Olive Ointment. I felt forced to try it, although I had seen many things advertised that never did me any good. I have now taken two small bottles and one large one of Sarsaparilla, and used three boxes of Ointment. I now call myself cured. Nothing can be seen of the humor but the dim outlines of the sores. I shall take two more bottles, and then the cure will be complete.

I am gratefully yours,
EDGAR F. WHITMAN.

Biliousness, Sick Headache.

PITTSFIELD, MASS.

MESSRS. C. I. HOOD & CO.: Gents—Please send me by express two bottles HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA and a few Cook Books for distribution. Your preparation has worked wonders in the case of my wife, who has been troubled with sick headache and biliousness for years. She only took one-half teaspoonful at a dose, and has not been so well for five years as now. She found that within a week after taking it she felt very much better, and is now entirely free from those severe headaches. She has not taken any of any account since last spring, and what little she had is lent to do some others some good, and we must have it in the house.

Yours truly,
HOMER B. NASH.

HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA

Is sold by all druggists. Price $1, or six large bottles for $5. Prepared only by C. I. HOOD & CO., Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass.

SPICES.—The best cook in the land cannot cook successfully without pure, fresh spices. These we have in every variety. Well-seasoned food adds to long life and happiness.

SUGARS AND SYRUPS.—In Sugars and Syrups we have all the best brands in the market. Much of the sugar now sold is adulterated, and in an article of this kind there is great waste. We buy from reliable dealers, and handle only the genuine goods.

TEAS AND COFFEES.—No breakfast can be thoroughly enjoyed without a good cup of coffee or tea. A drink of this kind is stimulating and goes right to the spot. Our Coffees and Teas are fresh and strictly pure. The fragrant odor which escapes from the steaming pot as it comes in from the kitchen will convince you of this. We sell more coffee than any other two houses in the county. Why? Because we sell the best and the people know it.

NUTS, CONFECTIONERY, ETC.—In Nuts and Confectionery we have everything that is nice, and just what will please the young folks, and old folks as well. Our candies are all pure and wholesome; We do not handle the highly-colored, poisonous mixtures that ruin and decay the teeth. We have new Florida oranges (this fall's crop), fine Figs and Prunes, and a choice line of Canned Fruits and Preserves. Bear this in mind when preparing to Celebrate the merry holidays.

We make special mention of the above lines of goods because they are all leading articles at this season of the year. In other lines our stock is equally fresh and complete.

We buy the Best Goods and sell at the Lowest Figures.

Blaine at Home.

AUGUSTA, Me., June 9—At 5.40 this evening the long train of thirteen cars bearing the Blaine delegates rolled into Augusta, where bands were playing, whistles blowing, bells ringing, artillery firing and crowds were assembled to meet it. A procession with music and banners was formed to escort the visitors.

Ex-Governor Connor accompanied the California delegation, and after brief remarks by Senator McClure, of California, ex-Senator Hamlin and others, the procession proceeded by the principal streets to the residence of Mr. Blaine, where they were received with cheers and clapping of hands. The Californians were then presented to Mrs. Blaine, who received them most cordially. Mr. Blaine then went to the door, where he was received with cheers. After speeches by General Connor and Congressman Boutelle, Mr. Blaine said:

Fellow Citizens: If anything could add to the pleasure of welcoming to my door and under my roof my old friends of Maine it would be as it was to-day to have them accompanied by the loyal, true hearted men from the Pacific coast, whom they bring to our hospitality, whom we greet and welcome as our guest. I am very sure that you must appreciate the embarrassment under which a man speaks when he is overwhelmed with demonstrations of kindness as I am to-day. I can only say from the depths of a profoundly thankful heart, "God bless you all."

Voices of "good" and tremendous applause.

Mr. Boutelle followed briefly and was succeeded by Senator McClure, who concluded by introducing Judge Knight, of California. Upon the conclusion of his remarks, the California delegation took a quiet personal leave of Mr. Blaine and retired, and then the crowd streamed by the door, shaking hands with Blaine. A reception to the California delegation followed.

A Cyclone in Kansas.

ATCHISON, Kan., June 10.—Information is just received of a destructive wind storm in the western portion of the State Saturday night last. The heavens had been fringed with heavy, black clouds all day, with considerable wind and much rain. At six o'clock in the evening at Cawker City the wind blew straight from the northwest with fearful velocity, tearing the roof off the Central branch depot and scattering it in fragments over the prairie. The First National bank building was forced from its foundations and carried away. About thirteen dwellings were either unroofed, demolished or badly wrecked in some manner. Many business houses were twisted from their foundations and had their fronts blown in. No lives are reported lost. At Warwick, the terminus of the Republican branch of the Union Pacific Railroad, the storm was also severe, many small houses were blown down, others unroofed, with chimneys, out-houses and fences totally destroyed. At Hardy, a small town on the Burlington and Missouri road in Nebraska, thirteen cars were blown from the track and wrecked, while other damage to houses, stores, etc., is reported. The rain fell in torrents and covered the ground completely in many places

Drifting Down to Death.

CHICAGO, June 10.—A special from Helena, Mont., says on Sunday afternoon, while the ferry boat at Thompson's Falls was crossing the river, the cable broke, and the boat went over the Falls, three hundred yards below. The boat had on eleven men, bound for the Cœur D'Alene mines, and thirteen packhorses, each carrying three hundred pounds of supplies for Eagle City. The current was very swift and powerful. As soon as the cable broke all the passengers except two jumped overboard and struggled vainly to reach the shore, but were swept over the falls. The boat righted after going over the brink, and lodged against Belknap bridge, a short distance below, where two passengers, who still clung to it, were rescued, and two men on shore took a skiff and tried to effect the resuce of those who jumped into the water, but they were also swept over the falls. Of the thirteen men concerned eleven were lost. All were strangers going to the mines. There names are not known. All the pack animals were also drowned.

Four Telegrams.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—The house committee on elections in the contested election case of Campbell vs. Morey, of the Seventh Ohio district, to-day agreed to report in favor of unseating Morey, republican, and seating the contestant, democrat.

PHILADELPHIA, June 10.—At to-day's session of the grand lodge of Orangemen the grand treasurer denied the published statement that the order in Pittsburgh has decided not to support Blaine for president.

CITY OF MEXICO, June 10.—The Monitor Republican speaks of the nomination of Blaine as bad news, saying that as senator and as secretary of state he was never a friend to Mexico.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—Commodore Robert Handy died at Jamaica Plains, Mass., on the 7th inst.

Bayard's Boom.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—The prominent mention of the name of Bayard in connection with the Democratic nomination for President and the strong favor which his name has met from those Independents who propose to bolt Blaine, has called attention once more to the speech of the Delaware Senator made at Dover in the beginning of the war. Whether he did or not make a disloyal talk to his friends and neighbors is the question, to the solution of which a great many Democrats are now addressing themselves, in order that it may be determined in time.

Frank Burr and George Alfred Townsend reported the speech at the time, and as it was published it was certainly a secession document. But Bayard claims the report was garbled and that sentiments were attributed to him that he never expressed. His own version of the remarks was printed in the New York Sun of June, 1880, and was pronounced by Jacob D. Cox, of Ohio, to be a patriotic speech,

A Southern man who was questioned about the matter said the Democrats could as well afford to nominate Wade Hampton as Bayard.

Lutheran Theological Seminary

READING, June 10.—This was the fifth day of the Lutheran Synod. It was unanimously decided that the new seminary should be erected at George's Hill, Philadelphia, and that by the united efforts of the churches and conferences of the ministerium of Pennsylvania. A test will be made, under a Board of Directors, to raise the funds for the erection of the new building. It is proposed to raise a first sum of $150,000. The new edifice is to be similar to Lafayette College at Easton or Dickinson College at Carlisle. A central building 240 by 300 feet, to accommodate 150 students, and a library building are to constitute the first group. The rest of the buildings necessary for a seminary will be built as the means can be secured. A telegram from Mr. Weisman, of Philadelphia, announced that the plot of ground at George's Hill could be purchased for $2,000 per acre. A resolution was then passed that if the ground in question could not be purchased at a reasonable figure the committee were authorized to purchase some other suitable site.

Tussle on a Train.

DOUGLASSVILLE, June 11.—Three tramps on a coal train coming up from Pottstown to this place attacked a well dressed stranger on the train, who was also stealing a ride. The stranger drew a revolver and shot one of the tramps, whereupon the other two grabbed the stranger and hurled him from the train. He tumbled headlong down a bank and was severely hurt. He was taken to a hotel here and cared for. He resides in Philadelphia. The tramp, who was badly shot in the shoulder, was laid in a coal car and cared for by his friends. What became of them is not known. The object of their attack on the stranger was robbery. He missed a regular passenger train at a point below Pottstown and jumped on a coal train to get to Reading as soon as possible. Philadelphia and Reading Railroad Officers, Boone and Kerns chased the two tramps, but they jumped into the Schuylkill at Monocacy, and swam across and escaped.

Disastrous Flood at Curwensville.

CURWENSVILLE, Pa., June 11.—This town was visited last night by a disastrous flood, caused by a heavy rain. The principal sufferers are John B. Alley & Co., steam tannery; Alex. H. Irwin, shingle mills; Z. McNaul, tannery and warehouse, and N. E. Arnold. A number of sheds at the pork house were also destroyed.

At 8 o'clock this morning the large dam eight miles above here was torn away, setting adrift thousands of logs which rushing upon the village of Bridgeport, one mile from here, carried away a number of houses and barns, but fortunately causing no loss of life. No estimate of the loss can be made at this hour, but will no doubt aggregate thousands of dollars. The borough loses two bridges. A number of small bridges west and north of here are gone, causing a suspension of travel for some time. There was no danger to the railroad.

Funeral of Gen. Webb.

NEW YORK, June 10.—The funeral of the late James Watson Webb took place to-day from the Church of the Heavenly Rest. Among the pallbearers were Whitelaw Reid, Le Grand B. Cannon, Charles A. Peabody, George H. Andrews, John Jay, Captain Jacob Vanderbilt and Isaac Bell. The services were conducted by Assistant Bishop Potter, assisted by Rev. Drs. Morgan and Donald. The interment was in Woodland cemetery. In the autumn the body will be taken to Claverack and placed in the church yard where his father and mother are buried. There were present in the church members of the Society of Cincinnati, Sidney Dillon, Elliott F. Shephard, Ex-Mayor Grace, R. Ogden Doremus, Erastus Brooks, Ex-Postmaster General James, Mrs. John Bigelow and Robert Lenox Belknap.

The Storm in Vermont.

SPRINGFIELD, June 10.—To-day the flood continued, and it was five or six hours before it began to subside. It is estimated over eighteen inches of water must have fallen since Monday noon. It has rained nearly all day and Black river has begun to rise. Many houses on Valley street show signs of being undermined, and if another storm occurs more devastations will follow.

A Death to Patent Pills.

BUFFALO, June 11.—Henry Bodie and his son both took several pills, known as Brandreth's yesterday. They became ill, and last night the elder Bodie died. The son will recover. These pills have been in the market for years.

Grant's Retirement.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—Through Representative Hill, of Ohio, Joy Post No. 112, G. A. R., of the Departments of Ohio, presented to Congress yesterday a protest, in the form of a resolution, unanimously adopted, against the passage of the Edmunds bill retiring General Grant. The resolution characterizes the proposition as unjust and an insult to the nation's defenders, all of whom have as good a right to be retired with rank and pay as Grant. The petitioners demand that "an everlasting quietus be put upon all such autocratic donations of the people's money." The resolution concludes thus: "And with all due respect to General Grant, we would not deprive him of any just claim on the nation's charity, nor of the benefit of the Soldier's Home if he should desire to avail himself of them."

What Blaine will Do.

BALTIMORE, June 10.—A mass meeting of colored Republican voters to endorse the nominations of Blaine and Logan was held in this city last night. The Hon. John Langston, Minister to Hayti, addressed the meeting. He told his hearers that James G. Blaine is the man who will push them forward until they stand on an even plane with their white fellow citizens. Already they were equal before the law and the social inequality is rapidly disappearing. Resolutions were passed endorsing the work of the Chicago Convention, as well in its platform as in its nominations.

Killed by Lightning.

HARRISBURG, June 10.—During a severe thunder storm here this afternoon, Frank Dively and his wife, residing on Eleventh street, were struck by lightning and killed at their doorway. Several other persons were shocked, a number of buildings were struck and a large stone in the State street soldiers' monument was displaced. The barn of J. R. Denny, at Sacheel, was destroyed, causing a loss of $3,000. Altogether five thunder storms prevailed in this vicinity within a circuit of several miles. The rain fall was the heaviest known in this locality for many years.

A Damaging Rainfall.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 9.—A severe rain fell all day yesterday throughout the state, from Santa Barbara to the north limit. Farmers were in the midst of haying and thousands of tons of hay will be materially injured. Reports from several places indicate considerable damage to wheat and barley, much of which has lodged. Fears are entertained that it will be further damaged by rust. All fruit will suffer. Rain fell in some places nearly an inch, which, for this season of the year, is unprecedented in the history of the state.

Commencement.

SALEM, Va., June 8.—The thirty-first annual commencement of Roanoke College was opened this morning in the college chapel with the baccalaureate sermon by Rev. Joel Swartz, D. D., of Gettsybug, Pa. The address before the Young Men's Christian Association of the college was delivered by Rev. W. S. Bowman, D. D., of Savannah, Ga., this evening. To-morrow night the contest for the gold medal for oratory will take place in the town hall. The present commencement promises to be of unusual interest by reason of the triennial reunion of graduates and former students.

The Nail Trade in Pittsburg.

PITTSBURG, June 11.—The Western Nail Association met here this morning and reduced its car rate from $2.60 to $2.40 per keg. This action was taken in order to get nearer the actual selling figure, which has been $2.25 in car lots at sixty days. The new rate will touch not far from the jobbing rate. Trade is quite dull, the stock of nails which was accumulated some months ago being still almost intact. Nearly all of the mills west of the Alleghenies were represented at the meeting.

Roosevelt in Line for Blaine.

ST. PAUL, June 9.—Theodore Roosevelt, of New York, in speaking of the issue of the Chicago convention, said the platform was an admirable one and there is scarcely a republican or independent but must endorse it heartily. As to himself he said: "I shall bolt the nomination of the convention by no means. I have no personal objection to Blaine, and believe he will be elected. I think you will find there will be no fatal disaffection."

Henry Villard.

NEW YORK, June 8.—Henry Villard went quite unexpectedly to Europe last week by advice of his physician, who found him suffering from insomoia and neuralgia, which he thought would be much helped, if not cured, by a sea voyage. His departure has no significance of a financial sort. He will return in two or three months for his family and go back for an indefinite period.

Friendly toward the Pope.

BRUSSELS, June 11.—This city and Antwerp are agitated over the result of yesterday's election for one half the deputies, in which the Liberals were defeated. M. Beernaert, a strong clerical, will probably be the Premier, and the relations with the Pope, which the former cabinet broke off, will be resumed.

Assistant Bishop Elected.

READING, Pa., June 11.—The Episcopal convention of the diocese of Central Pennsylvania to-day elected Rev. Dr. Nelson Somerville Rulison, of Cleveland, Ohio, assistant bishop of the diocese.

Fire in a Massachusetts Town.

BOSTON, June 10.—The town of Peabody, Mass., narrowly escaped destruction by fire this morning. In all twenty-six buildings were damaged or destroyed. The fire started in the curing shop of Pinder & Winchester's tannery, and before the firemen were fairly at work the flames had spread from building to building until three acres were ablaze. Much surrounding property was threatened, but help arrived from Salem in time to save the town. The firm was doing a rushing business and employed about three hundred hands. The losses are about $125,000. The insurance on the buildings burned, with machinery and stock, is $104,400.

Tilden Declines.

NEW YORK, June 11.—Samuel J. Tilden, the "only hope" of the Democrats for President, is aware that certain defeat awaits that party, next fall, and to-day wrote a letter which was given to the Associated Press, in which he emphatically declines to accept the nomination for President should it be tendered him. This, together with Bayard's treasonable speech, puts Democracy again at sea and their only alternative seems to be to endorse Ben Butler.

Terrific Rain Storm.

SPRINGFIELD, Vt., June 9.—A terrible storm visited this place to-day. The rain fell from the heavens. So rapidly did the water in Black creek rise that people were forced to flee for their lives. The individual loss and damage to highways will reach at least $50,000. A barn connected with the Cheshire Bridge hotel was blown down, killing William Parker and fatally injuring Bella Spaulding.

Small Pox.

ASHLAND, June 11.—The board of health at its meeting last evening received the following statement as to the actual status of small pox at this place. There are in all nine cases, eight of these are at the hospital and one in town. Three are permitted to walk about outside the hospital, two are convalescing and three are confined to beds. Flags were taken down from all quarantine houses except one yesterday.

Sons of Veterans Encampment.

MILTON, Pa., June 11.—The Fourth annual encampment of the Eastern division of the Sons of Veterans was to-day opened here and will continue three days. Over 200 delegates representing 97 camps are present. Frank Bound delivered an address of welcome to which Col. R. M. J. Reed responded.

Not the Naval Officer.

PHILADELPHIA, June 11.—The body of a man found in Central park, New York to-day, with a card bearing the name of C. A. McDaniel, United States Navy, is not that of Mr. McDaniel, as was supposed. That gentleman is at his residence in this city, enjoying good health.

Will Adjourn June 30.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—Mr. Morrison, of Illinois, from the committee on ways and means, reported to the house to-day a concurrent resolution fixing the hour of adjournment at 3 p. m., on Monday, June 30. The resolution was received with applause and passed almost unanimously.

Pacific Slopers for Blaine.

PORTLAND, Me., June 11.—An immense audience assembled this evening to welcome the California delegation. A number of speeches were made and every allusion to Blaine was received with enthusiasm. The meeting closed with three cheers for the ticket.

—The water was drawn off McCoy & Linn's dam on Saturday, June 7, for the purpose of constructing another forebay. The men and boys in that vicinity waded in and caught thousands of fish—suckers and eels. They carried them home in buckets and bags.

An Argument for Cremation.

London Times.

No argument worthy of the name, or that could be immediately refuted, has yet been adduced against cremation. We have been told that the system is and most remain costly, and that it will offer a premium to a scientific poisoner. It has been conclusively demonstrated that a body can be cremated for the moderate sum of ten shillings, and that an absolutely infallible safeguard against poisoning with impunity and without detection can be taken. There remain the objections to cremation on sentimental or theological grounds. The first are completely disposed of if cremation is optional and not compulsory. The second are contained in the first. If a man when he is alive has no religious compunctions on the subject of reducing his body to ashes in a certain number of minutes by the agency of fire, and thus anticipating the processes of nature, no person else has a right to protest against it.

In the epitaph which Charles Reade has written for himself, the following solemn and pathetic words occur: "I hope for a resurrection, not from any power in Nature, but from the will of the Lord God Omniponent, who made Nature and me. He created man out of nothing, which Nature could not. He can restore man from the dust, which Nature cannot." If the supreme miracle of the resurrection of the dead is worked at all, as, according to the creeds of the Church, we are bound to believe it is, it must be immaterial whether the body decays in the earth or is consumed in the flames. To take exception to cremation from religious reasons is a materialistic superstition.

Returning to Their First Love.

[The Current.]

Certain distinguished Americans who have lived so long abroad as to encourage the suspicion that they had lost their fondness for the institutions of their native land are very emphatically declaring their love for the star spangled banner, in view of the European disposition to disparage American qualities and things. Marion Crawford wants it distinctly understood that he is an American citizen, thoroughly imbued with a love of his country, while Moncure D. Conway, after preaching in London many years, and circumnavigating the globe with his eyes open, is preparing to spend the rest of his days in the United States, having become wholly convinced that Americans are "the salt of the earth."

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth! If so, send at once and get a bottle of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhoea, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle.

Jones to Bubbs: "I hear you're engaged to Clara Tiffin. Is it true?" Bubbs: "Not a bit of it. To her? Why, her head is as vacuous as an empty bottle." Jones: "Ah! of course. If it resembles that, I can imagine how uninteresting it must be to you." Bubbs is not resentful by nature, but a coolness springs up between him and Jones from that moment.

Itching Piles—Symptoms and Cure.

The symptoms are moisture, like perspiration, intense itching, increased by scratching; very distressing, particularly at night; seems as if pinworms were crawling in and about the rectum; the private parts are sometimes affected. If allowed to continue very serious results may follow. "SWAYNE'S OINTMENT" is a pleasant, sure cure. Also, for tetter, Itch, salt-rheum, scald-head, erysipelas, barbers' itch, blotches, all scaly, crusty skin diseases. Box, by mail, 50 cts.; 3 for $1.25. Address, DR. SWAYNE & SON, Phila., Pa. EXCURSIONS.

To Conneaut Lake, by railroad, and ride on the lake free of charge. To Chautauqua Lake Friday. Fare for round trip, 180 miles, including 40 miles ride on the lake, $1.25. This excursion can stop four or five hours at the celebrated "Assembly" grounds at Fair Point, and dinner can be procured at the magnificent "Hotel Athenæum." In going, the steamer can be taken at Lakewood, and on the return trip the party can pass down the Outlet to Jamestown, and thus have opportunity of viewing some of the finest natural scenery in Western New York. The Museum of Natural History Society's rooms and at Allegheny College and other points of interest in and about the city, can be visited at pleasure, between the afternoon and evening sessions.

Excursion tickets will be sold on the railroads from July 5th to July 10th, good to return until July 21st, 1884. Persons procuring certificates and presenting the same to ticket agents at the stations from which they start, and paying full fare to Meadville, will be returned for one-fourth of the fare paid in going, by having their certificates duly endorsed by J. F. Sickel, of Meadville. In applying for such a certificate, the name and address of the person desiring to use it, must be given.

Our Colored Citizens.

MR. EDITOR: We hope that all the colored men in Centre county and many out of it read the editorial in the Democratic Watchman of June 6, entitled "A Negro Presides at the Republican National Convention." The editors of that paper announce that they "blush" at the "political and personal degradation" which is produced at the spectacle of a negro presiding over a convention of white men. Now, we don't believe either of the editors of the Watchman blushed about it at all. They are too much lost to all sense of fastidiousness to blush.

The next time they blush we hope they will invite us to come and see it. Such a spectacle would be decidedly novel. It is something quite different from a blush that so often mantles their cheeks a delicate carmine. But when they do blush it might be well for them to select something worth blushing about. A colored man occupying such a position by right of his mental worth and ability is a spectacle which should awaken a feeling of pride instead of producing a blush. We are glad a colored man did preside over the convention, and, for the sake of argument admitting the possibility of such a transformature scene, we are glad that the Watchman editors blushed so much about it as to cause them to write that editorial. We hope if there is the least lingering disposition in the mind of any colored man in this nation to vote for a Democrat that editorial will dissipate it. Colored men are endowed with sound sense and we are sure not one of them will vote in the interest of a party which entertains for them the contempt expressed in that editorial.

PROGRESS.

A Storm on the Mountain.

The Johnstown Tribune of Tuesday, the 10th, has the following: "A violent lightning and thunder storm visited several localities on the mountain Sunday evening. The elements were particularly active in Clearfield township; vivid and rapidly succeeding flashes of lightning, terrific bursts of thunder, and violent winds combining with teeming torrents of rain, descending from an inky-black sky, rendered the scene one of awful solemnity and terror. The residence of Mr. John McFeely, a farmer, was struck by lightning, the current taking effect in the chimney, passing thence to the sitting-room, shattering the stovepipe, demolishing the stove, tearing up a section of the flooring, and knocking the members of the family present in the room senseless, but inflicting no serious damage upon them. The house caught fire, but was promptly extinguished. So far as has been ascertained no considerable loss was caused by the storm."

—There was a circus in town on Tuesday, the 10th. This will be surprising to many of our readers. It was called Washburn & Huntings'. Circus day is usually the occasion for a large congregation of people, but very few came to town on Tuesday. The show is not an extensive one, but the wagons and other equipments have a clean, bright appearance and the performance was pronounced creditable. But it didn't pay. The audience in the afternoon was small and at night quite insignificant. 'Fact is, people didn't know anything about the the advent of a circus. The managers seemed to be unsophisticated-green. They are quite gentlemanly and pleasant, but they are afraid to pay for advertising. As a consequence, people didn't know there was a circus and they didn't have opportunity to join in what is to them a gala day. We sympathise with the people and advise the managers of the show to advertise.

—Whatever the effect may be on business in other places, the Blaine nomination has had a remarkably revivifying effect on business in Bellefonte. The business houses here have been receiving a larger number of orders than they received before for many months. For instance, the firm of Wm. P. Duncan & Co. have an order to put in a large rolling mill for the Lewisburg Nail Company; the Presbyterians are pushing forward their new Sunday school building and are now about making a contract for the stained glass for the windows; the stores are doing an immense trade and the fickle spring weather has settled into excellent growing summer sunshine and showers. Tell you what, there's nothing better than a Blaine boom for this country.

—Dealers in summer drinks report a good trade.

The Gem of the June Sky.

The earth's twin sister, Venus, is now a superb object in the heavens, shining with surpassing brilliancy in the west as soon as the sun disappears below the horizon. The moon approaching the full scarcely dims the lustre of the fairest of the stars and the giant Jupiter, beaming faintly above her, is of no account in comparison with his fair rival. Our nearest celestial neighbor is in her best estate, taking on the brightest aspect she ever assumes for terrestrial eyes. If we could pierce the dense atmosphere that surrounds her and behold the starlit sky that arches above her a star of surpassing beauty would attract our attention. This would be our own earth approaching opposition and appearing under more favorable conditions from this standpoint than Venus is ever seen in our sky, for the earth is an outer planet, as observed from Venus, and, like Mars, Jupiter and Saturn in our sky, is visible when in opposition throughout the night. Observers on the earth never see Venus much more than three hours after sunset or three hours before sunrise. Observers on Venus can at times behold the earth during the entire night, shining, as she looks down from the zenith, with peerless beauty on the midnight sky, her lustre undimned by the twilight glow and her round, full face turned toward her neighbor planet, whose place is nearer the sun than her own.—Altoona Tribune.

—A special meeting of Logan Hose Company was held Monday evening, the 9th. The chief item of business transacted was the appointment of a committee to call on our citizens to solicit contributions of eatables and drinkables for the pic-nic dinner on the Fourth of July. In this connection, please let us urge the citizens to be liberal and it will be well for as many as possible to donate cooked meats. Other years there has been a scarcity of this very necessary article of food. Remember that the fire laddies devote themselves to the protection of the town from the dangerous element—fire. They receive no recompense for this valuable work, the appropriations being sufficient to provide for only necessary expenses. It is certainly as little as they can ask in return that the citizens provide for the entertainment of them and their friends when desiring to engage in a patriotic celebration. Therefore, be generous.

—Our town is at last to be favored by a college glee club concert. The Arion Glee Club of Princeton, on a trip through Pennsylvania and Eastern Ohio, will be with us on Thursday evening, June 19th. Their programme will consist of English glee and college songs, which will no doubt revive in college men the feelings of their college days. We shall have an opportunity of hearing, in our town, the songs with which "Old Princeton's" campus has so often resounded when on a May eve. the boys break the classic stillness of her shades. We look forward to a rare treat.

—A letter received on Tuesday from an enthusiastic Illinois Republican contained the following sentences: "The deed is done. It is only necessary for the Democrats to meet in convention and ratify the nomination of Blaine and Logan. Republicans and Democrats in Illinois are more than pleased and will support the ticket."

—We learn from the Williamsport Gazette and Bulletin of the death of Mrs. Clara B. Price, wife of Mr. John H. Price, Jr., and youngest daughter of Josiah Emery, Esq., of that city. She is a sister of Mr. William Emery, of the Bellefonte Nail Company.

—If there are any Bellefonte girls who want to play base ball they should organize a club. The game of base ball was not only fashionable among the young ladies of England in the fourteenth century, but it was encouraged in every possible way by the nobility.

—Eagleville has an unusually industrious boy, if we may believe the reports we hear. A few days ago he went to work on the road and worked out his father's road tax. His name his Harry C. Egan and his age is only 8 years.

—The eleventh annual inter-state picnic and exhibition, under the auspices of Patrons of Husbandry of the Middle States, will open at Williams' Grove Cumberland county, Pa., on Monday, August 25, and continue until Saturday, August 30.

—The game of base ball at State College on Saturday afternoon, June 7, between the Acmes and State College Club No. 2 resulted in a victory for the latter by a score of 14 to 8.

More About the Dancing Class Hop.

In the NEWS of Monday, June 9, we alluded to the beautiful toilets of some of the ladies from a distance who attended the Gentleman's Dancing Class Ball on the 6th inst. We, however, unintentionally omitted Miss Minnie Scott, of Lock Haven, who while in Bellefonte was the guest of Miss Jennie Reynolds. She appeared at the ball beautifully attired in rich white silk and rare lace, and attracted great admiration.

Persons of undoubted taste are of opinion that reference to the elegant affair is incomplete without mentioning at least a few of the beautiful toilets in which the Bellefonte ladies were attired. Quite conspicuous among them was Miss Brockerhoff in violet silk and velvet; Mrs. James Lane in cream silk with velvet bodice; Miss Mary Thomas in pale green with lace trimmings; Miss Wilkinson in cream color with lace trimmings; and Miss Mary Gephart in pink silk beautifully trimmed with lace.

—The people of Tyrone and Hollidaysburg are making arrangements to put in steam heat. The work was accomplished so satisfactorily in Bellefonte that the projectors of the enterprise in the two towns mentioned above will give employment to Bellefonte contractors and laborers. Mr. P. C. Steele, Sr., will have charge of the working gang in digging the trenches and if he carries on the work with the same expedition that he did in this place those towns will soon have the benefit of this modern convenience.

—The Shamokin Times is curious to know what Gen. Beaver's friends will do for Blaine.—Harrisburg Patriot. All right; we will enlighten our Shamokin contemporary. Gen. Beaver and his friends will roll up their sleeves and enter the campaign of '84 with but one desire and one purpose—to do all in their power for the success of the Blaine ticket. That is where Beaver's friends stand in this contest. Other curious journals will please take notice.

—A man whose name we have not learned was relieved of a watch on Tuesday night, the 10th, while walking near the lock-up. Some men advanced from the rear, struck him on the head with a billy and ran away with his watch before the victim could recover from his surprise. He had quite a large sum of money in his pocked which the assailants did not obtain. He has an idea as to the identity of the attacking party and put Capt. Montgomery on their track this morning.

—The Presbytery of Huntingdon held an adjourned meeting in Lower Spruce Creek church at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning, June 10. Rev. John K. Andrews was received from the Presbytery of Chester. He has accepted a call to become pastor of the Bedford Presbyterian church and will be installed on Tuesday, June 24, by Revs. William Laurie, David Conway and S. M. Moore, D. D.

—F. P. Green the druggist, is unusually successful in the cultivation of strawberries. He exhibited some beautiful specimens of the Sharpless variety in his store on Tuesday, June 10, which were grown in his garden in town.

—A new danger from beer was illustrated in Newberg, N. Y., on Monday, June 9. A barrel of beer exploded in a brewery, killing James Quillan. When his wife heard of the accident she became demented.

—A Young Men's Republican Club was organized in Altoona on Monday evening of last week.

Bellefonte Republican.

EDWARD T. TUTEN, - - Editor

Terms, $2.00 per annum in Advance

Local Department.

—Lock Haven has a Young Men's Republican Club.

—Mrs. Bullock expired at her residence on Allegheny St., at 2.20 p. m. on Monday. Obituary next week.

—The cars on the Spring Mills and Lemont R. R. now run as far as Centre Hall. They will reach Lemont within 30 days.

—A game of base ball between the Lock Haven and Williamsport nines on Thursday resulted in favor of the former by a score of 6 to 4.

—Among the stores that will close at 8 o'clock in the evening, which are not given in the regular list, may be mentioned H. Y. Stitzer and Bunnell & Aikens.

—Commencement week at Lafayette College begins on June 22. A circular containing special railroad rates may be had by addressing the College Secretary at Easton.

—Now that the S. M. and L. R. R. is completed as far as Centre Hall, the citizens of that town are organizing a grand excursion by rail to Spring Mills. It will occur to-day (Wednesday), June 18.

—A prominent sewing machine agent of Bellefonte visited Pleasant Gap on Friday. While in that village his horse broke loose from its fastenings and ran a distance of only three miles. However, the run didn't hurt the horse and as for the conveyance, a few dollars will repair all damages.

—On Friday, Mrs. Levi Krebs, who lives near Pine Grove, was at work in the garden. Suddenly she felt a severe pain in her head. Paralysis followed and in two hours she was a corpse. We do not know her age. She leaves a husband and children. All her relatives have our sympathy.

—A Guiteau bullet struck down President Garfield and now a half dozen cranky kickers are attempting to defeat Garfield's Secretary of State. Let the people arise in their might and indignation and overthrow forever the bolters whose only mission seems to be to cause excitement and crime.

—A barn owned by Martin Daily located on Wallace's Run was burned on Sunday night between 12 and 1 o'clock. The contents, including quite a large quantity of hay and grain, was also destroyed. Quite fortunately, the horses in the building were saved without injury. It is supposed the building was fired by tramps.

—The Huntingdon Globe discovers that there are six letters in Blaine's name; that he was nominated on the sixth day of the week, which is Friday and is spelled with six letters, and also on the sixth day of the month and the sixth month of the year. This is a certain indication that he will run like "sixty" and will receive at least 600,000 majority.

—The summer session of the State Board of Agriculture was opened in Lock Haven on Wednesday, Governor Pattison presiding. Lieutenant Wm. Hayes delivered a cordial address of welcome, which was responded to by the governor. Bedford was selected as the place for the fall sessions. Not only farmers but business men are taking a great interest in the sessions of the board.

—Quite a large delegation of ladies started away from Bellefonte for Bealsburg on Friday afternoon to attend a temperance meeting in the latter place in the evening. They took lunch along which they partook of in the hall in which the meeting was to be held before the people began to assemble. They started home about 10 o'clock. It was so dark at that hour that they were almost afraid to venture forth, but at length summoned up sufficient courage. They reached Bellefonte at 1 o'clock and consider the expedition rather enjoyable than otherwise. Their meeting was quite successful.

—In 1872 Horace Greeley and Reuben E. Fenton, of New York, Charles Summer, of Massachusetts, Galusha A. Grow and our own much respected Andrew G. Curtin, Lyman Trumbull, of Illinois, George Hoadly, of Ohio, and a host of such men went out of the Republican party and made a bold and determined effort to defeat its ticket. They failed—failed ignominiously, and their movement disappeared like frost before the sun. If the giants of those days failed in their mistaken zeal to destroy, the party which gave them a place in history, what must become of the weaker movement to-day? Mr Blaine's great strength lies in the fact that he is the people's candidate.

Vote of Thanks.

At a regular meeting of Gregg Post, No. 95, G. A. R., held at their Post Room the 7th day of June, 1884, the following resolutions were offered:

Resolved, That the thanks of Gregg Post, are hereby tendered, to the merchants, business men, and all citizens of Bellefonte, for the general suspension of business, and the interest manifested in behalf of the comrades of the Grand Army in the memorial services of May 30th, ult.

Also, To all persons (particularly to the ladies and children of our town and vicinity), who took such a very active part in gathering flowers and preparing decorations for the graves of our deceased comrades.

Also, Company "B." N. G. of Pa., State College Cadets, Logan and Undine Hose companies, and others who so willingly accepted the invitation and participated in the parade, and for the decorum and reverence manifested towards our fallen soldiers.

Also, the Rev. Milton K. Foster, for his very able and patriotic address in the Court House on Memorial Day evening.

Also, George P. Bible, the well known elocutionist, for his very appropriate recitation.

Also, thanks to the choir of ladies and gentlemen who rendered the music on occasion of the services in the Court House.

Also, Prof. D. M. Lieb and his choir of ladies and children who rendered the Odes so elegantly and well timed under the circumstances, during the ceremonies in the cemetery, and for the manner he marshaled his battalion of one hundred or more children during the parade through the grounds, to the home of the dead.

Also, thanks to the large, intelligent and attentive audience that thronged the Court House to hear the address and closing ceremonies of Memorial Day of May 30th, 1884.

J. H. RANKIN, Adjt. H. H. BENNER, Post Commander.

A Children's Day Service.

Children's Day was observed in the Methodist church at Boiling Springs by a service held at the usual hour on Sunday evening. For the purpose of securing a full attendance of the children Sunday school did not meet until 5:30 o'clock p. m. and after it was over the congregation also assembled. Several beautiful bouquets and a collection of very fine flowering plants were placed near the pulpit and attracted general admiration.

Rev. Mr. Graham, the pastor of the church, took charge of the exercises and rendered them intensely interesting. He chose an appropriate text as the basis of his remarks and illustrated by means of a magnet. Christ's remarkable utterance that if He be lifted up He will draw all men unto Him. He had small nails and large nails, big rusty spikes, whitewashed sticks, nails the ends of which were covered with putty and others with stones tied to them. These illustrated how those who are unincumbered by the affairs of this life cling closely to Christ and how others, by reason of their condition or weights which they will not throw off, are drawn back into the world. This object lesson proved very valuable to all. Excellent music and earnest devotional exercises gave the proper solemnity to the service.

Death of Mrs. Samuel Runkle.

For the benefit of our numerous readers who remember the subject of this notice we copy from the Millheim Journal the following in regard to her death: "Mrs. Samuel Runkle, a native of Centre county, Pa., and a sister of Jacob Keen of this town, departed this life at her residence, near Oneco, Stephenson county, Ill., on May 31st, 1884, after suffering from cancer for several years. Mrs. Runkle was born in Centre county, January 15, 1814, where she spent the early portion of her life. Over fifty years ago she was married to Mr. Runkle and in 1845 they went West. They settled at Rock Grove and lived there for fifteen years, when they moved to near Oneco, where they resided up to Mrs. Runkle's death. Deceased was a daughter of George and Sarah Keen, of Centre county, where she has brothers and one sister and many relations. She leaves a husband and seven children, besides many grand children to morn her loss."

—Among the proceedings of the State Board of Agriculture in Lock Haven on Thursday morning, the Express gives the following in reference to the part taken by Mr. J. A. Woodward, of Howard: "Mr. J. A. Woodward, associate editor of the Farm Journal, read an essay on the subject of "Country Roads—What they are, and why—What they should be, and how." One hour was consumed in discussion upon the subject matter of the essay, and in comparing the various local road laws now in force in different parts of the State. A resolution of thanks to Mr. Woodward was adopted and also a clause in the same requesting members to have the essay published in their respective county papers." Mr. Woodward's essay seems to have been the most notable one thus far read before the Board.

—Politics is the engrossing topic of conversation in the vicinity of Harpers' store on Spring street.

Death of a Native of Centre County.

John W. Miles, who died in Danville, this State, on the 11th of June, aged 83 years, 4 months and 10 days, was born in this county, and when about 16 years of age he joined a corps of surveyors who were engaged in laying county lines, etc. He afterward engaged in lumbering and rafting, working at this business with the late Governor Bigler. He then became bookkeeper in the employ of the Curtin family, appointed collector of tolls at Northumberland, in 1833. Mr. Miles removed to Danville, and became bookkeeper for the Messrs. Grove Brothers. In 1851 he received from President Pierce an appointment in the treasury department at Washington. He remained there during Buchanan's term and two years of Lincoln's administration. On his return to Danville he was twice elected justice of the peace, serving ten years in that capacity.

The Danville Sun says that he voted three times for General Jackson, casting his first vote for Old Hickory, in 1824, in the latter's memorable contest for the Presidency with J. Q. Adams and Henry Clay. He was intimately acquainted with the leading men of his day, especially with Buchanan. Howel Cobb, General Cass, Alexander H. Stephens, Thaddeus Stevens, Breckenridge, Douglass, Jefferson Davis, Johnson, Seward and John W. Forney. In the Buckshot war Mr. Miles marched from Lancaster to Harrisburg.

Distressing Accident to a Little Boy.

A runaway occurred near Beezer's distillery on the Roopsburg road on Sunday evening which may result fatally to a little boy who was thrown from the vehicle. Mr. George Campbell, of Milesburg, was driving in a buggy along that road. He had with him his little son. By some means one of the wheels came off the buggy and the single tree, in falling, struck the horse's heels, causing the animal to become unmanageable. When Mr. Campbell saw that he could not control the horse he leaped from the vehicle and endeavored to take his little son with him. But the boy was much terrified and clung tightly to the seat of the vehicle. The horse, thus suddenly freed from all resistance, sprang forward with the little fellow still in the buggy. The buggy came in contact with the still house and was upset, the boy being thrown out. His head struck the ground, rendering him unconscious. When the child was picked up he was thought to be dead, but we are glad to hear that he is still living. We hope to hear of his recovery.

Birthday Anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand Beezer, who reside near this place, had the pleasure on Thursday evening, June 12, of entertaining a large company of their friends from Bellefonte and Boiling Springs and other relatives and acquaintances near their home. The occasion was Mr. Beezer's birthday and it was celebrated in a way which shows that that gentleman is held in very high esteem by all. Ice cream, cakes and other choice viands constituted the physical refreshment of the evening. These were so unusually excellent as to occasion favorable comments. "Haven't tasted such delicious ice cream since landing in America!" exclaimed Mr. Donavan, when his dish was filled the sixth time. The guests remained until a late hour and enjoyed themselves immensely. Mr. Beezer received many congratulations and numerous substantial tokens of remembrance in the shape of beautiful gifts of value. May the host and hostess live to enjoy many more birthdays.

—Bellefonte is to have another shoe store and that it will be an excellent one none can doubt. Mr. Louis Doll, one of the most experienced boot and shoe dealers in the State of Pennsylvania, will this week open up a very superior stock in the store room recently occupied by Miller & Hoover, in Humes' block, on Allegheny street. This is a fine location and Mr. Doll will be able to exhibit his splendid line of goods to great advantage. Mr. Doll has no superior as a shoemaker in Northern Pennsylvania and we predict for him an immense trade. All will be ready in a few days. Those who want to purchase new foot-wear of any description or to have old foot-wear repaired should give Mr. Doll a call and the result will be very satisfactory. Be sure to inspect his elegant goods even if you do not wish to buy.

—Mr. Jacob Giliver, a brakesman on the P. and E. Railroad, had one of his legs taken off by the cars on Saturday last and died from the effects of the accident on Sunday. Mr. Giliver's father was also killed on the railroad near Tyrone a few months ago. The fact that death came so suddenly to both father and son renders the case very sad.

A Farmer's Serious Loss.

About 7 o'clock on Thursday morning of last week, says the Altoona Tribune, a little son of Mr. Jacob Hoffman, of Jenner township, Somerset county, near Jenner X Roads, saw a strange man in the mow of his father's barn, setting the hay on fire. Mr. and Mrs. Hoffman being away from home, Mr. Hoffman's aged mother and the domestic were the only ones to whom the lad could go for help. They carried water and fought the fire bravely, but it spread with great rapidity, and the entire building was soon wrapped in flames. Mr. Hoffman and his wife returned home while the fire was yet raging, and the gentleman arrived just in time to save his mother's life, as he found her standing in the midst of the flames valiantly doing all in her power to subdue them. He carried her out of the barn, and it was then found that she was severely burned. Mr. Hoffman loses all of his agricultural machinery, and a large amount of meat, wheat, hay, oats, &c. His loss will amount to fully $3,000, upon which there is only $1,000 insurance. Preparations are now on foot for rebuilding.

An Enjoyable Gathering.

Mr. and Mrs. John Goodhart, who live about two miles west of Spring Mills, entertained a large company of their friends on Tuesday, June 10. The gathering was in the nature of a re-union of relatives, neighbors and friends. Mrs. Goodhart had been ill for about 10 weeks past and it was at her request the entertainment was given as she believed that the enlivening effects of such a company would benefit her. All who were present greeted her so warmly and the occasion was so pleasant that she really did feel greatly revived by the spirit of cheer that pervaded it. Among the guests who were present we enumerate the following: Mr. and Mrs. Sankey, of Centre Hall; Mr. and Mrs. Goist, of Illinois; Mr. Wm Goodhart and wife (William is a son of Mr. and Mrs. G.); Mr. and Mrs. Dauberman; Mr. and Mrs. Knarr; Mrs. George Goodhart; Mrs. Mollie Neff and daughter.

A surprise dinner was provided of which all partook heartily. The prevailing sentiment was: "Truly, our host and hostess are well named—Good-heart."

A Beautiful Bicycle.

Mr. Eugene Heaverly, general manager of Mann's Store, a few days ago purchased the most magnificent bicycle ever seen in this section. Mr. H. is one of those young men who always have the very best of whatever is in style and in his choice of a two-wheeled vehicle displayed his usual excellent taste. The graceful and elegant instrument of locomotion cost him $140. It is one of the Columbia Bicycle Company's best make, nickle plated throughout and presents a beautiful appearance. But the perfection of grace is attained only when Eugene is mounted thereon. With the aid of numerous friends to steady him in his first attempts on the somewhat uncontrollable instrument, he expects soon to be able to manipulate it with ease.

—Two well known Bellefonte gentlemen—one a disciple of medicine and the other a hardware merchant, and each accompanied by his favorite lady friend—started off Friday evening to have a good time. The most important element of such an occasion is evidently, in their estimation, something to eat. Where they went we do not know, of what they did we are equally ignorant, and the complete stock of delicacies which composed their feast is to us an unknown quantity; but we do know that it included ten quarts of strawberries. That was just two quarts and a half for each member of the party. Well, we hope the strawberries were enjoyable, but are certain that such a feast would cut short the career of an editor, both by reason of its quantity and cost.

—A Philadelphia paper publishes the details of the purchase by the Lehigh Valley railroad company of a tract of bituminous coal land in Centre and Clearfield counties, embracing nearly 50,000 acres. The land is located near Snow Shoe city, on a spur of the Allegheny mountains, over which the Pennsylvania railroad runs. The output will be hauled to Tamaqua or Mount Carmel where connection is made with the Lehigh Valley system. A contract regulating the rate of toll over the Pennsylvania road was signed on Friday, and the land was purchased immediately afterwards for $1,000,000. The land is partially developed. Vanderbilt's Beech Creek road passes through the property.

—Solomon Kleckner, a resident of Brush Valley, died on Thursday afternoon, June 5. The funeral occurred on Sunday, June 8. Deceased was 61 years, 10 months and 21 days old.

Personal Pencilings.

J. L. Spangler, Esq., visited Tyrone on Wednesday.

Mr. Irvin, of Clearfield, is the guest of his son, Mr. James Irvin, of this place.

Mr. John Bartruff and family are now occupying their new house on Water street.

Mr. Adolph Loeb is putting steam heat in his handsome stone residence on Spring street.

Mr. C. T. Gerberich has returned from his somewhat extended trip through the State.

Mr. Frank Stover, the meat market man, has erected a new awning in front of his establishment.

Rev. John Hewitt, rector of the Episcopal church, returned from Reading on Thursday evening.

Mrs. John Ramsdale and Mrs James Passmore, of Philipsburg, sailed for Europe on Saturday, June 7.

Mr. Jeremiah Hoy, of Madisonburg, is entertaining his daughter, Mrs. Gramley, of Adamsburg, Snyder Co.

Mr. William Blackburn, of Philadelphia, is expected in Bellefonte about the 1st of July to pay his friends a visit.

Miss Annie Orvis, daughter of ex-Judge Orvis, came home on Saturday from New York State, where she has been attending school.

Miss Minnie Brew, of this place, who spent the winter with friends in Newark, N. J., is now visiting at the home of her brother in Tyrone.

Grand Master Leonard Rhone and Christian Dale, Sr., departed on Wednesday for Lock Haven to attend the meeting of the State Board of Agriculture.

Miss Helen Simpson, one of Lock Haven's petite and accomplished daughters, who has been favoring her friend Miss Jennie Reynolds with her company for a week past, returned home Saturday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Brower, of Bloomsburg, have been visiting at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Lingle, of this place, for several days past. They departed on Monday, June 10, Mrs Lingle accompanying them.

Mr. Jacob Wolf, of Millheim, is visiting his daughter Miss Mary Neff, who resides in Blaine, Perry county, Pa. Of course, he will enjoy himself while in a town which rejoices in the name of our next President.

Rev. Mr. Noble, of Snow Shoe, preached in the Methodist church of this place on Sunday morning, Rev. Mr. Foster preaching in Mr. Noble's church in Snow Shoe. Rev. Noble pleased the Bellefonte congregation very much.

Miss Mary Waddle, of Lock Haven, who distinguished herself during the sessions of the recent Centre county institute, by her elocutionary and vocal efforts, is visiting in this vicinity at the residence of her grandfather ex-Sheriff Waddle.

Mr. James Hughes arrived home from Princeton College on Wednesday evening. He looks unusually well, and is enthusiastic in regard to the merits of the Arion Glee Club of the College which will give a concert in Reynolds' Opera House on Thursday evening of this week.

Mr. Newman, formerly of the firm of Bauland & Newman, the first proprietors of Bellefonte's "Bee Hive" stores, is at present in town. He is now the proprietor of an extensive importing house in Chicago and is on his way home from Europe, where he has been purchasing goods. He looks as handsome and corpulent as he did five or six years ago.

Mrs. Burrows, wife of the genial ex-Collector of internal revenue, is visiting on Linn street at the residence of Mrs. Crider. Miss Laura Burrows, a daughter, is enjoying the hospitality of the family of that distinguished statesman, Mr. A. V. Miller, of Pleasant Gap, and frequently comes to Bellefonte to give her friends here the benefit of her society.

Rev. Mr. Lohr and family, of Hughesville, Lycoming Co., are visiting relatives in this vicinity. Mr. Lohr was in Bellefonte on Friday and favored us with a pleasant call. His health has not been of the best of late and he anticipates that by a week's recreation among the hills and dales of Centre he will be physically much improved which we hope will be the case.

Miss Bella Rankin, daughter of James H. Rankin, Esq., of this place, departed on Thursday to visit relatives in Washington City. After leaving the Capital she will go to Jonesboro, Tennessee, to visit her sister Mrs. R. A. Kinsloe, Jonesboro being only ten miles from the home of ex-Congressman S. H. Yocum. She also expects to visit other places of interest and will not return home until September. It will be a very enjoyable trip.

Personal Pencilings.

Miss Hannah Johnson, of Harrisburg, is the guest of her sister, Mrs. S. T. Shugert.

Mr. Chas. F. Cook is attending a Sunday-school convention in Louisville, Kentucky.

Mr. Linn Harris, son of Mr. John P. Harris, is, we regret to state, quite ill and is now in St. Luke's hospital, St. Louis. We hope he may soon recover.

Mr. Thomas Burnside, of Missouri, who has been visiting in Bellefonte during the past four weeks, departed Monday evening for his home. Mrs. Brockerhoff accompanied him and will spend some time visiting Mr. Burnside's family and other friends in the vicinity of St. Louis.

Mr. John P. Harris accompanied by his daughter, Miss Emma, returned home on Saturday evening. Miss Emma has been attending school in Cincinnati. They had the pleasure of a brief trip further west before starting home. They visited Mr. Linn Harris in St. Louis and the family of Mr. Thomas Burnside near that city. We hear that Mr. H. was greatly pleased with Missouri.

Recommended for the Legislature.

The following letter, prepared by some of the citizens of Boggs township, has been addressed to the NEWS for publication. We agree with the opinion it expresses:

MR. EDITOR: As it is about time to look around for men to fill our county offices, the people of Boggs township would recommend the name of E. I. Walker as a suitable candidate for the legislature. He being a laboring man, would do all he could for the good of the laboring class of people, and as such we earnestly hope that he may be nominated, for if nominated he can be elected easier than any other man we may name. Hoping the voters of Centre county may look to their interest in this nomination, we are respectfully,

Yours,

BOGGS TOWNSHIP.

Early Closing.

The business houses in Bellefonte which began last Monday evening to close at 8 o'clock, are given below. The paper circulated for their signatures is as follows:

We, the undersigned merchants of Bellefonte, do hereby agree to close our respective places of business every day at 8 o'clock, Saturdays excepted, commencing Monday June 16, '84, and ending September 1, '84.

To which the following names are affixed:

George E. Lewis, Harper & Weakley, Frank P. Blair, A. C. Mingle, Goldsmith Brothers, Spangler & Co., E. Brown, Jr., & Co., V. J. Bauer & Co., John Meese, Samuel Lewins, C. U. Hoffer & Co., Lyon & Co., Joseph Bros. & Co., S. & A. Loeb, H. K. Hicks, J. A. Harper & Co., I. Guggenheimer, D. Garman & Son, John Powers & Son, Valentines Store Co. Lim., A. V. Smith, F. C. Richard, J. W. Cooke, E. Graham & Son, W. T. Twitmire, James Harris & Co., W. H. Wilkinson, W. L. Fleming, Wilson, McFarlane & Co., W. F. Montgomery & Co., Sechler & Co.

The Railroad.

The Centre Hall Reporter gives the following information about the new railroad: We expect to see the track laid from Centre Hall to Lemont by July 15, at farthest, and from that point to Bellefonte, sometime in the fall.

There will be no regular trains ove the new part of the road until contractor Vandyke has finished the road to Lemont, when it will be taken off his hands by the railroad company and used for business.

The work of grading is progressing on the branch to Bellefonte. The grading is going on on this side of Mann's axe factory and at other points along the route.

—On Thursday evening about nine o'clock as Mr. Lewis Gettig and Mr. Michael Hazel were driving along Willow Bank street the buggy in which they rode went over the lower side of the bridge crossing the creek at that point. The distance down into the creek is four or five feet, but but it so happened that neither of the occupants of the buggy were much hurt, Mr. Gettig receiving quite a painful cut on his head. The shafts of the buggy were broken which was the only damage to the vehicle. All things considered, the escape from serious injury was very fortunate. We hope it will convince the borough authorities that there should be a railing on each side of that bridge.

—For several days past a red box of singular shape has occupied a position in front of Mr. William Lyon's meat market on Bishop street. Its peculiar appearance has elicited comment. On inquiry, we learned that it is designed as a bath tub for Mr. E. J. Swavely, and when we come to consider its dimensions—14 feet long by 6 inches wide—it is strange that inquiry was necessary to discover its purpose.

MARRIED.

RISHEL—KELLER.—On the 6th of June, by Rev. S. M. Roeder, Ira M. Rishel and Miss Ella Keller, both of Potter township.
